Meat price spiral has producers and consumers beefing

Associated Press Writer

Food prices: Everybody has a gripe.

From the livestock producer who's losing money; to the supermarket operator whose costs are up; to the consumer struggling to stretch the family budget.

The situation they face is full of confusion and contradiction:

—The farmer is getting less money for his cattle, but the consumer is paying almost as much for meat as he did last year.

—The livestock producers who raise the calves and fatten the cattle for market and the middlemen who slaughter the steer and sell the meat to you are faced with higher costs. Some are losing money. Even those doing better than last year say profits are lower than they were five years ago.

—The administration is encouraging people to buy meat and has promised to buy $100 million of beef and pork to help boost the farmer's income.

—Looking ahead, the government hopes large grain crops this year will cut the price of feed grains, making meat cheaper to produce. But even if this happens, nobody knows how much of that saving would be passed on to you at the retail meat counter. The question is whether inflation of other items can be controlled.

Normally, farm, wholesale and retail prices go up and down together. It isn't working that way with meat. Why not?

To understand what's happening to your meat budget now, you have to go back to early 1973.

A little more than a year ago, farmers were getting high prices for their cattle. Consumers, paying an average of $1.36 a pound for meat, got angry and organized a weeklong meat boycott.

The government, meanwhile, put ceilings on what packers could charge supermarkets and what supermarkets could charge you for beef, lamb and pork. Farmers, however, were allowed to charge more money for their livestock. The bottom was allowed to go up, but the top and the middle stayed put.

The packers and retailers rebelled, refusing to pay more because they couldn't charge you more. Farmers held on to their animals, creating an oversupply on the farm. When controls came off last September, farmers sent all the cattle to market, there was a greater supply than demand and farmers got less money than they expected.

The backlog is still there. It got even bigger in December and February because of truckers strikes that kept meat from the market. Farmers are still getting less money than they did one year ago, but retail prices, until recently at least, were at or near 1973 levels.

Where is your meat dollar going? Here is a government breakdown in cents:

	Apr 72	Apr 73	Apr 74
Retailer	31.0	26.7	30.6
Packer	6.3	6.2	7.4
Farmer	62.7	67.1	62.0

Another set of government figures shows that the farmer got about 8 cents less for a pound of beef this May than he did in April, 1973. The retail price was down only one penny—from $1.36 a pound to $1.35. Why?

Industry sources, who don't like to talk for attribution about this sensitive subject, give this explanation:

Suppose you are a retailer who buys a product for $1 and resells it for $2. Of the dollar markup, 80 cents goes for costs of running your store; 20 cents is profit.

Now, suppose the amount you pay for the product goes down to 50 cents. At the same time, however, your other costs go up to 90 cents. That's $1.40. Add your 20 cents profit and you have a $1.60 selling price.

The wholesale price has dropped 50 cents, the retail price only 40 cens. That's what's happening to meat prices right now.

The American Meat Institute, which represents the packers, broke down what happens to the 7.4 cents the packer gets of your meat dollar:

Wages and salaries 3.7 cents
Rent, depreciation and interest 1.5 cents
Supplies and containers 1.0 cents
All other expenses 1.6 cents
Profit .3 cents

The institute said it could not provide comparable figures for 1973. But a spokesman said wages alone had risen 12 per cent in the past year—from an average of $7.41 an hour last year to $8.29 this year for salaries and fringe benefits.

Elias Paul, president of John Morrell Co., one of the largest packers, said that until this year the industry had been averaging a profit of between- nine-tenths of a cent and 1.2 cents for every dollar of sales. This year, he said, earnings were less.

The National Association of Food Chains, representing retailers, said labor costs account for 65 per cent of the supermarket's share of the dollar. The rest goes to utilities, rent, depreciation, taxes, maintenance and repair, promotion and insurance.

Hauling meat to store 17.9
Refrigeration cases 25.7
Meat coolers 10.5
Meat saws 15.7
Packaging 25.0
Utility rates 10.0 to 60.0

Industry profits are expected to rise 50 per cent this year, the association said. A spokesman said that in dollars and cents, this means the store will make three-fourths of a cent for every dollar in sales, instead of one-half cent. And a spokesman said that in 1968 and 1969, the retailer made about a penny for each dollar in sales.

In response to complaints by livestock producers—ranchers who raise the calves and feedlot operators who fatten them for market—the government has launched investigations of whether the spread between the price the farmer gets and the price the consumer pays is too large.

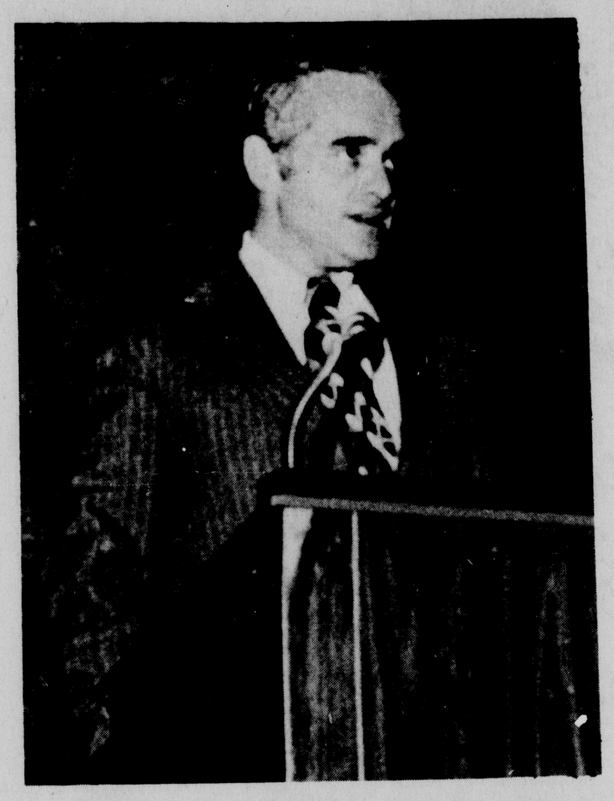
Eagleton tells Democrats inflation can be stopped

"Reduction of federal spending and a relaxation of the Federal Reserve Board's tight money are two means of fighting rampant inflation," Sen. Thomas Eagleton told about 300 Young Democrats Saturday night during the closing banquet of the Missouri Young Democrats state convention at the Ramada Inn.

Eagleton, who is currently seeking re-election to the U.S. Senate, said he voted against a tax cut proposal offered last week in the Senate by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., because the proposal would have provided the average family only 85 cents a week in tax cuts while it would have fueled inflation by increasing the federal debt by several billion dollars.

"Congress should develop some means of relieving the temporary dislocation caused by unemployment and high rates of inflation," he remarked, adding that to the five million workers who are out of a job, this is a very real problem.

Eagleton said public employment is only a partial answer, but that unemployment compensation improvements would also help. "The executive branch, if it were willing and able, could move to pump more funds into the home mortgage market ... We could also improve the Food Stamp Program and accelerate plans to cushion this country from wide fluctuations in world commodity supplies," Eagleton said.



Sen. Thomas Eagleton

Eagleton said Congress should step forward and stop dreaming about fat, non-inflationary tax cuts that do not exist and exercise some guidance. "We have begun by passing a comprehensive budget reform measure, but more is needed," he remarked.

Eagleton said he had recently voted to put a $295 billion ceiling on federal expenditures — more than $9 billion below President Richard Nixon's proposed budget. He added that he also voted for an amendment to lower the national debt ceiling by $5 billion.

Eagleton said the President reported in his 1973 State of the Union address that economic prospects were very bright and there was a chance to reduce the overall inflation rate to two and a half per cent by the end of 1973. "The fact is that by the end of 1973 it was 10.1 per cent," Eagleton said.

"In the February 1974 economic report by the President, the prediction was made that inflation for the year would average seven per cent. Since the report, inflation has been running well over 12 per cent," Eagleton noted.

The President said that by the end of May the inflation rate would not reach seven per cent for the year, but that we would only come down to that rate by the fourth quarter, Eagleton reported. "That implies an inflation rate for the year of about 10 per cent," he commented.

Eagleton said there are two courses of action that can be followed to keep inflation from becoming a severe hardship for some people. "The first is the optimistic - high risk plan, and that is a tax cut," Eagleton said. He added that although he had opposed the recent tax cut proposals, he would have to consider cutting taxes for the low and middle- income citizens who have been hurt the most by inflation.

"The second possibility, and the one I favor, is referred to as the pessimistic - low risk plan," Eagleton said. According to Eagleton, federal spending could be cut, thereby reducing the budget deficit.

Telephone rate hike is sought

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Residential telephone bills will increase 15 per cent and the cost of pay phones will double if Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. receives a rate hike it will formally request this week.

The telephone company plans to file a rate increase request totaling $52.3 million per year Tuesday with the Missouri Public Service Commission in Jefferson City.

R.R. Shockley, vice president of Missouri-Illinois operations, said Saturday that the company needed a better rate of return on its investments to ensure continued growth and to maintain service. The minimum acceptable rate, he said, is 9.3 per cent.

Major causes for the request, said Shockley, are rising inflation and increased costs of materials, gasoline, vehicles, buildings, equipment and labor.

Under the proposal, the cost of single-party residential service would increase from $7.85 to $9 monthly, while the cost of pay phone use would jump from 10 cents to 20 cents. The last increase in pay phone cost came in 1952, when it rose from a nickel to a dime.

In addition, charges for a party line with 40 free calls would increase from $3.55 to $3.90 monthly and the costs of most other services, including installation charges, new phones, toll calls and long distance calls, would also be raised.

If the new rate schedule is improved, Southwestern Bell would receive about $49.1 million more from customers yearly, with the remainder of the increase absorbed by gross receipt taxes.

After federal, state and other local taxes, the phone company would net only $24.8 million, Shockley said.

The rate hike proposal follows a report released in February by Southwestern Bell showing record profits of $330,842,000 for 1973.

Authorities probe death of hit-and-run victim

The highway patrol and New Madrid County Sheriff's Department are continuing an investigation into the death of a 29- year - old woman who was struck and killed about 1:45 a.m. Sunday by a hit - and - run driver. Four other area traffic accidents over the weekend resulted in injuries to five persons, the highway patrol reported.

The woman, who was known by three different names, Deloris Davis, Deloris Duggins and Deloris Vogt, lived in a mobile home in St. Jude Big Oak Trailer Park just east of Highway 61 at the Highway 62 junction where the accident occurred.

She reportedly was lying across the southbound lane of Highway 61 when a car, traveling at a high rate of speed, struck her and did not stop.

According to a sheriff's deputy, the victim had been seen in Lilbourn at a tavern earlier Saturday between 8:30 and 9 p.m. until the tavern closed at 11 p.m.

She had been released Friday from custody of the sheriff's department when she was allowed to post her own $5,000 bond on a charge of felonious assault with intent to kill.

Price reductions create 'milk war'

A major reduction in retail milk prices was apparent today in many local grocery stores. The drop, totaling as much as 26 cents a gallon, follows a wholesale price reduction of four cents a gallon in at least one local dairy.

A spokesman for Liberty Super Market said milk under their private label is selling for $1.43 a gallon. That price, effective today is 26 cents less than last week-end's price.

Sikeston IGA Foodliner is also selling their store - labeled milk for $1.43 a gallon. One employe said the price reductions are creating "a milk war."

"According to state law, retailers can not make less than eight per cent mark up on milk prices, but we will follow the reductions to say in competition," the employe said.

Personnel at Barkett's Big Star said they planned to reduce their milk prices today but would not reveal any figures.

Ed Ring, owner of Bootheel Dairy, said Friday his orders to reduce wholesale milk prices by four cents a gallon came from his central office in St. Louis.

"The reductions are probably due to increases in the amount of milk reaching the market. I'm sure it has nothing to do with Watergate or the milk fund," Ring said.

Scott countians elected to 2 state Young Democrat posts

Miss Marca Sipes of Chaffee was elected national committeewoman and G. David Bird, 928 N. Ranney St., was elected treasurer of the Missouri Young Democrats during its annual state convention held Friday and Saturday at the Ramada Inn.

Other officers elected were Wayne Graham of Raytown, President; Stanley Brown of Clinton, executive vice president; Janice McMillen of Jefferson City, Administrative vice president; Debbie Barber of Columbia, recording secretary; Bob Levine of St. Louis, corresponding secretary; and Jim Schrewsbury of St. Louis, sergeant at arms.

Bill Lochman of Independence, region six director, and Joe Service of Kansas City, national committeeman were re-elected to office.

Officers were elected by more than 300 delegates who registered for the weekend event hosted by the Scott and New Madrid county Young Democrats Clubs.

R. Michael Hobbs of St. Louis, outgoing president of the Missouri Young Democrats, stated that the 1974 convention was called for three basic reasons.

The first reason was to express the desire of the state Young Democrats to aid all Democratic office seekers and holders, he said. Other reasons were to elect new state officers and formulate policies for those officers to follow, he added.

The chief proposal backed by the Missouri Young Democrats is to see that minority quotas are met in selecting representatives to the 1976 Democratic National Convention.

"We want proportional representation and we want quota establishments for minority groups such as blacks and youths and for majority groups such as women," Hobbs remarked.

"We want to make sure that all segments of the party are represented at all levels," he commented.

Council to discuss liquor codes

The City Council will meet at 7:30 p.m. today at the City Administrative Building.

The agenda will include discussion of an ordinance amending Sikeston liquor-by- the- drink codes to comply with state law.

Acting City Manager Bill Whitlock will report to the council on the possibility of obtaining government financing to build a joint school- city indoor swimming pool.

The council will consider a request to close the Maude Street crossing of the Frisco Railroad tracks in order to open the Wakefield Street crossing; a request for the abandonment of Frisco Street from Ruth to Kendall streets, Kendall from South Handy to Frisco and Gladys from South Handy to Frisco Street; and a request from property owners to change the name of Linda Drive to Windsor Drive.

Anti-burning ordinance enforced

The city will begin enforcing its anti- burning ordinance today, according to Acting City Manager Bill Whitlock.

The city ordinance bans all open burning exept by approval of the fire department.

Sikeston has had the code on the books for years, but it previously has not been enforced. The City Council said it wanted the ordinance enforced during a special meeting on June 17.

The ordinance defines open burning as any fire where the smoke is not emitted through a "smoke stack, chimney or other vent flue or structure."

A DAY FOR SELF-RENEWAL

Wel all know (or do we?) that the Fourth of July is really the wrong day to be celebrating American independence. The resolution first was passed by the Continental Congress on July 2, 1776, and given its final vote of approval on July 19.

The flag we salute with pride today also has a confusing history, having had as few as nine stripes and as many as 18. The Star- Spangled Banner which inspired Francis Scott Key in 1814 had 15 stripes.

And historians now tell us the story of the Liberty Bell pealing the news of the signing of the Declaration of Independence in Philadelphia is a legend without foundation.

Does it matter so much? Early Americans, elated by freedom from foreign oppression, swaggering with the heady wine of indpendence and deeply aware that they were carving a new nation with the new laws, needed symbols to revere.

If there ever were any questions about the Fourth of July being the proper day for the national birthday, they were laid to rest with Thomas Jefferson and John Adams — both of whom died on July 4, 1826.

In Congress, William Wirt of the House of Representatives rose to seal the date: "Hiterto, fellow citizens, the Fourth of July has been celebrated among us, only as the anniversary of our independence, and its votaries had been merely human beings. But at its last recurrence — the great Jubilee of the nation — the anniversary, it may well be termed, of the liberty of man — heaven, itself, mingled visibly in the celebration, and hallowed the day anew by a double apotheosis."

Such wordy phrases remind us now that over the decades the Fourth of July probably has done as much to cheapen the art of oratory as any other single event. Until the middle of the 20th Century, no July 4 picnic was complete without recollections reaching back to the arrival of the Mayflower.

Times have changed the oratorical style, but rhetoric remains. The American experience has grown beyond the raw newness of a country whose people were still trying on the idea of liberty for size. But today's United States citizens know that independence is still a learning process which must be relived generation by generation. So it is necessary to have symbols — the Fourth, the flag, the bell — to remind us that we have a national purpose — what Jefferson termed "the free right to the unbounded exercise of reason and freedom of opinion."

We know that imperfection abounds among us, but we also know that from our time of national birth nothing has been stronger than the desire and the will to make this country work for the betterment of man.

Independence — whether expressed in the pages of history or lived in the world of today — is no legend. It is the celebration of nationhood which makes it self-renewing.

Next Thursday is what should be the most patriotic day of the year. We feel sorry for those misguided men, we question if they should be called men, who ran away from the draft or from battle and settled in foreign countries. In our childhood we looked upon July 4 with little more thought than a day to shoot fireworks. We saved our pennies, nickels and dimes to buy maybe fifty cents worth of firecrackers. And we got up before daylight to start shooting them. We still have a scar in the palm of our right hand where a firecracker exploded prematurely. Grabbing the wrist with our left hand we ran for the doctor, fearing to look at the hand as we were scared it has been blown off. Our schools taught us love for our country and we tried hard to go with the first group of the Monroe County draftees in August 1971, but was told we would go when our time came. Being way down the list, we went to Kansas City and enlisted. No prouder days in our life were there than when our two sons volunteered in World War II. We'll never vote for a presidential candidate who is willing to grant amnesty to our deserters.

THE BIAS OF NETWORK NEWS

In the past few years, the discussion of bias in television news almost inevitably degenerates into assertions about the personal bias or the personal fairness of news commentators. The assumption is always that bias is a personal attribute of newsmen, and the slanting of news in one direction or another can be annalyzed by adding up the personal biases of the newsmen as if one were adding up the number of black and white marbles in a collection.

Reducing the issue of bias to a simple question about the fairness of individual newsmen not only leads to dead -end discussions, but it also tends to obscure a much more serious form of bias -- the bias of the news organization itself.

Just as a roulette wheel which is mounted on a tilted table would tend to favor some numbers over others, no matter how impartial the croupier might be, a television network which is "tilted" in any consistent direction because of the way it is organized will tend to favor certain types of stories over others -- no matter how fair the newscaster might be.

One of the main sub-surface features of the national news which comes from the network is that it is filtered through and controlled by a group of producers and editors located in New York City. This is especially true of the three evening newscasts -- the CBS Evening News with Walter Cronkite, the NBC Nightly News with John Chancellor, and the ABC Reasoner- Smith Report -- which have combined audience of more than 50 million viewers. The events to be covered, the story line which will be followed, the correspondent, and the editing of the story are all tightly supervised from New York.

Dr. Edward J. Epstein's study also pointed out that not only are the vast preponderence of stories about America centrally selected and edited in New York, but most of the news footage used to illustrate them are drawn from four metropolitan centers -- New York, Washington, D. C., Chicago and Los Angeles. More than 80 per cent of the networks' domestic camera- crews and correspondents are stationed in these four cities. Moreover, permanent hook-ups maintained in these cities so that film stories can be electronically "fed" to the broadcast center in New York; and, with the exception of Los Angeles, no charge is made against the program's budget for transmitting stories from these cities. In the case of most other cities, special microwave channels have to be leased from A.T.&T. to transmit stories, and this usually involves a heavy expense for the program's budget.

In other words, network news is set up in such a way that stories from a few cities are much more convenient and less expensive than stories from the rest of America.

This does not mean, however, that network news crews do not venture out into the hinterland when the occasion demands it: in the case of a major happening, such as the uprising at Wounded Knee, S.D., crews and correspondents will be dispatched despite the expense. But on more routine coverage - and especially on more general stories about trends rather than events -- the path of least resistance is followed and assignments are given to the crews which are most conveniently located from the networks' point of view.

The results is that "national" stories about urban violence, civil rights, anti-war protests, ecology, meat boycotts, Watergate, and inflation tend to be depicted in terms of the special problems of four unique cities. Paradoxically, the concentration of media coverage in these four cities has tended to make them logical stages for demonstrations and confrontations seeking a certain form of national attention, and thus has further reduced the value of the dramatic footage obtained from these cities – at least for the purpose of being representative of national trends and moods.

JEFFERSON CITY — A plea for drivers to show extra alertness, courtesy and patience over the July 4 holiday has been issued by Col. Sam S. Smith, superintendent of the Missouri State Highway Patrol.

"The driver who expects a safe trip over the Fourth of July holiday will have to be alert, show courtesy at all times and be patient under all circumstances," Smith declared. "I urge all drivers to follow these safe driving practices as they travel."

The patrol superintendent noted that 11 persons died in Missouri traffic mishaps over the July 4 holiday period last year. Eight people lost their lives in accidents investigated by the highway patrol and three people were killed in urban traffic. He also pointed out that over the past five years, 102 people have been killed in Missouri traffic accidents over this holiday period, an average of 20 a year.

"An important thing to remember as you drive over this holiday period, or any time, is that it only takes a small mistake to become involved in an accident," Smith continued, "A moment of inattention, failing to yield the right of way, or driving too fast for conditions are all errors that can lead to accidents."

The offical traffic death count for the July 4 holiday period will begin at 6 p.m. Wednesday and go through midnight, Thursday (30 hours).

THE MOMENTUM
OF IMPEACHMENT

The question is no longer "What did the President know and when did he know it" but whether the sheer momentum of the ponderous impeachment process may not now have passed the point of no return.

If so, even the significant statement by Sen. Sam Ervin in Cleveland the other day that testimony before his Watergate investigating committee "indicated to me the President had not committed an impeachable offense" may have no effect.

Even President Nixon's complete and unqualified cooperation with the House Judiciary Committee's impeachment inquiry, a co operation he is steadily being forced into despite counterattacks from the White House, may be too late to stem the tide.

Not only have too many things been set in motion, not only has popular confidence in the President eroded to about the lowest point possible, but the very idea of impeachment has been talked up and down across the nation for so many months that it is no longer as scary and unthinkable as it onces was. Indeed, it more and more appears that both for the President's sake as well as the country's, a formal, full-scale impeachment hearing may be the only way to settle this issue once and for all.

It is not just Watergate that the President cannot shake off his back. Other matters are contributing to the deterioration of his position.

Inflation, particulary in the basic necessity of food and fuel along with shortages are rightly or wrongly being laid at the door of the White House. People are fed up with a seemingly endless stream of crises and bad news, and while the responsibility for this scarcely constitutes an empeachable offense on the part of the President, it is this souring mood of the public which, more than anything else, will bring the nation to the brink of impeachment.

One other thing could provide the final push over the edge. That is the dark hint by Rep. Wilbur Mill, D-Ark. that when the findings of the joint congressional inquiry into President Nixon's finances are revealed they will be more damaging to him even than Watergate.

So great may be the disgust of Americns that even if the President is cleared of any deliberate fraud on his income tax returns, the demands for his impeachment or resignation may become irresistible.

It will all have begun with Watergate, but in the end, Watergate will have been only one of the factors making the year 1974 one of the most traumatic in the nation's history.

SOVIETS TRY
TRACTOR "INVASION"

Communist Russia now looks to invade the world farm machinery market, starting with tractors from Minsk. Tractors from Minsk are not a burlesque joke. They are a threat to the U.S. balance of payments and the stability of our farm machinery industry. The reason is not that communist tractors are better than capitalist tractors. They are not. The Reds can simply sell them at below market price, without regard to cost of production.

Soviet technological and production failures have put the Reds behind in their balance of payments with the U.S. Last year the payment gap amounted to a billion dollars, much of it caused by failures in Soviet agriculture. The Reds were forced to buy capitalist grains and even with subsidies and credits financed by U.S. taxpayers, Moscow was hard pressed to pay for it.

While they were eating our food, they turned more of their own production to military hardware and related items, including trucks and farm machinery. Soviet workers must labor where they are told and at wages set by the Red dictators. U.S. industry can compete and produce better farm machinery than Red models copied from U.S. designs. U.S. labor cannot compete iwth Soviet slave labor. Our good workers should not have to compete with slave labor of communist countries. HLH

Goodby to the Hook: No-Crisis Pact Guarantees Longshoremen $16,000 a Year -- Work or No Work

NEW YORK -- It's a long way from Tipperary for the bouncy bantam Teddy Gleason, the longshoremen's chief. It's a long way from the days his people settled here in a cold- water flat and he had to run down five shaky flights to get to the outhouse. And from Coney Island where he hawked hot dogs.

And it's a long way for his International Longshoremen's Association's 50,000 dockwallopers under their new master wage pact -- the details of which are just seeping out. It's a long way from the days of the hook, the hand truck and the angry Hollywood movies to the current agreement which will in two years guaranted a waterfront worker $16,000 a year whether he works or not. And under which he can make $35,000 to $40,00 a year.

And with Social Security a docker can retire after 25 years with a $9,000 to $12,000 a year pension (depending on his family status).

And there's the new $12 an hour overtime rate -- which can give a man $120 after a long night's work.

There's all this and more covered in a topside agreement with the tough- bargaining employers' council of North Atlantic Shipping Associations covering six big harbors. And soon to encompass all ports from Searsport, Maine, to Brownsville, Texas. It's a costly package for the shippers -- what with having paid longshoremen $44 million this past year in Guaranteed Annual Income.

But the big news in this settlement, hammered out last week in Miami, is in Teddy Gleason's new statesmanship -- a phrase which crunches him a bit but he wears proudly as once he did a new pair of shoes. This agreement was concluded 110 days in advance of the Sept. 30th contract expiration date. This is a first for the industry. It's been struck regularly like a Chinese gong since 1915. Then the dockers fought for a half- hour lunch period and grease for the hand trucks.

And there was the 1923 boycott of British ships "when the English were going to hang the Lord Mayor (McSweeney) of Cork for fighting for Irish freedom." He went on a hunger strike, died in prison and the stevedoring strikes swung to other issues -- mostly money. Billions of dollars worth of American trade has been lost or crippled in waterfront stoppages since 1946. In the last 25 years, the ILA has been the Taft- Hartley Law's best cooling- off customer, one government official said.

For some years now "Teddy" and his colleagues in other maritime unions have been conferring on efforts to counteract foreign competition from foreign shipowners paying low, sometimes slave, wages who could guarantee delivery while our piers were paralyzed. For two years now Gleason has been talking with Dave Cole of the American Arbitration Association's Labor- Management Committee, who doubled as Chairman of President Nixon's National Commission for Industrial Peace -- always seeking methods to end crisis bqrgaining which drove off foreign buyers of American products.

Dave Cole is a good councelor; he has advised many presidents. Gleason got off the wharf kick. Which is good. Few realize that a total strike called by Gleason and his colleagues could shut this nation up tighter than Ron Ziegler on an inoperative day.

"Main thing is," says Gleason, "I wanted to close out the cycle. We just didn't do this country any good with a strike every two to three years.

"I think this nation just isn't in shape for a strike. Things are too tough at home and internationally to have America's transportation system tied up. We would be hurting our world money exchange and the ability of our manufacturers to ship and compete abroad. The foreigners would out there killing our markets."

Gleason explained how easily "the foreigners" could sweep into the U.S. Today's container- carrying ships are mobile. They can go deep into Canada or to some Mexican port, unload the big metal "boxes," put them piggyback on trucks and move the foreign- made cheap labor goods to compete with our workers' products anywhere in the U.S. with the most "fantastic speed."

What do the American shipping and stevedore companies get for their new wage and fringe payouts? Well, automation and a promise of a full day's work and nobody ducking out on assignments in the harbor after a swift morning show at the hall to get credit for the Guaranteed Annual Income, which will be $13,000 the first year of the three- year pact, $14,500 the second year, and $16,000 in the final year. This system will be monitored.

And there will be swift loading of whole "barges." Thus in one swoop 400 to 500 tons can be loaded in a few minutes aboard what are called LASH (Lighter Aboard Ship) and LASH Seabees.

The shippers are groaning but content. Rarely in peacetime has there been such a heavy flow of oceangoing trade. A long strike now would have crippled the economy. So, as in the newspaper printing field, management is paying heavily for automation and attrition of manpower which eventually will thin the longshoremen ranks as the dockwallopers retire. It is hoped it will pay off for all sides -- no strikes and a full day's (automated) work for a very full day 's pay. On The Waterfront, it's a long way from the hand truck, the hook, the cruel shape- up and the legendary men of Tipperary.

Washington-Merry-Go-Round

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:
'Nofziger Jobs'

WASHINGTON — President Nixon has lived by the leak, just as he has been brought low by the leak.

In his attempt to control the flow of underground information from the White House, he has employed both plumbers and leakers.

Indeed, those presidential spokesmen, who have expressed such grand moral outrage over the House impeachment leaks, are some of the best leakers in the business.

We have made a careful study of presidential leaks, which are known in the backrooms of the White House as "Nofziger Jobs," after former presidential aide Lyn Nofziger who was a master of the leak.

Not long after taking over the White House in 1969, President Nixon himself fashioned his public relations strategy in a series of eight secret memos to his staff chief, H. R. Haldeman.

In a typical memo, dated Sept. 22, 1969, the President called his aides' tactics "inadequate" and "amateurish" and urged them to show more "bulldog" determination against people like Sen. Ted Kennedy, D-Mass.

As former aide Jeb Stuart Magruder has confided: "The most sophisticated student of public relations in the White House was ... the President himself."

The President's strategy included the adroit use of the leak. He favored staffmen Lynn Nofziger and Pat Buchanan, because of their excellent press contacts, to plant the stories the White House wanted sneaked out.

The President's favorite target was always Sen. Kennedy. In an attempt to link Kennedy with Hanoi, for example, the President instructed Haldeman: "Buchanan's prudent primary group might get a major mailing out to editors and columnists in Massachusetts and perhaps even nationally, just setting forth the Hanoi quote ... Buchanan also should be able to get a columnit or two -- and Nofziger could help in this respect -- to pick up this line."

Another time, Magruder planted an innocent picture of Kennedy and a beautiful woman, photographed on the streets of Rome, in a national scandal sheet. "It was later picked up by one of the news magazines," Magruder has confessed.

Former White House special investigator Jack Caulfield has also told senators behind closed doors how he tried to float out a false story that the Kennedy family foundation had financed a newspaper series criticizing presidential pal Bebe Rebozo.

Caulfield told the senators that he recommended "an oblique Nofziger, an immediate drop vis-a-vis the Kennedys ..."

The bewildered Senate Watergate staff, uninitiated in the backroom lingo of the White House, didn't understand. "What did that mean?" Caulfield was asked.

He explained painstakingly: "Well, what I meant was that consideration be given to have Lynn Nofziger speak with friends that he had in the media (about) whether or not the Newsday article was financed by the Kennedy Foundation."

Nofziger told us he did not leak the story. But someone did, since it was circulating around Washington at the time.

As another "Nofziger Job," Caulfield testified in secret that he was asked to run "a name- check with the FBI" on moviemaker Emile De Antonio, who produced an anti- Nixon movie called "Millhouse: A White Comedy."

Caulfield got the obliging FBI to give him a summary of De Antonio's file, including raw data. Afterward, Caulfield reported jubilantly to his superiors: "If (Democratic national chairman Larry) O'Brien is stupid enough to get behind (the film), we can, armed with the Bureau's information, do a Nofziger Job on De Antonio and O'Brien."

Again, a committee investigator wanted to know: "What do you mean ... a Nofziger Job?"

"What I mean," again recounted Caulfield, "is let him, Lyn Nofziger, whose talents in that area were much greater than anyone else around the White House ..., make that known to his contacts in the media."

This particular "Nofziger Job," however, was aborted -- possibly because the White House didn't want to advertise the movie even with unfavorable publicity.

At the same time that President Nixon made skillful use of leaks to smear his political foes, he went to elaborage, even illegal lengths to stop leaks about himself. He was a man haunted by dark secrets which he feared might leak out and drive him from public office.

So he formed the para-police plumbers unit, which was supposed to plug up unaughorized leaks. Another ex- White House leaker,

Charles Colson, has acknowledged in his courtroom confession that the plumbers broke into the offices of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist, however, not to plug a leak but to get dirt against Ellsberg to leak out.

Ironically, most of the White House horrors, which have by now effectively destroyed the presidency of Richard Nixon, were committed in reaction to press leaks in an attempt to stop them.

Footnote: In a future column we will describe more of the secret White House leaks.

Fireworks blamed for 3 fires

Firemen were called to four fires over the weekend, three of which were started by firecrackers.

At 9:05 p.m. Saturday, firemen were called to a grass fire at the VFW Stadium.

At 1:07 p.m. Sunday they were called to a grass fire near the Sikeston Regional Diagnostic Clinic on Plaza Drive. At 2:58 p.m. firemen were called to Matthews Elementary School on Pine Street, where firecrackers set fire to a log.

Firemen were called at 1:30 p.m. Saturday when a utility pole in the 500 block of South New Madrid Street was set afire by burning trash.

No damage was reported in any of the fires.

Voters to name collector

LILBOURN — Voters will ballot Tuesday in a special election to name a city collector and approve or disapprove a proposed electrical franchise agreement for a term of 20 years with Missouri Utilities Co. The proposed agreement could be terminated at the end of 10 years by option of the city.

Candidates for the collector position are Fredda Saltzman Hahne, Barbara Riley, Mary Helen Adams and Marveline Scott.

Polls will be open from 6 a.m. to 7 p.m. at the city hall for west ward voters and in the old school gymnasium in the east ward.

Barbara Eagleton is liberated woman

By JEANNE MAYNARD

Barbara Eagleton

Being the wife of a political figure is a demanding position, but Barbara Eagleton considers herself a liberated woman.

"I am not bound by my husband's rules or rules of the past. I am only bound by my own rules," Mrs. Eagleton said Saturday while visiting Sikeston with her husband, Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton.

Mrs. Eagleton said she is "all for" the Equal Rights Amendment. She has spoken before many groups in favor of the ERA which has not yet been ratified in Missouri.

"I am particularly interested in equal pay for women," she said.

The ERA failed in committee this year because many legislators tied it with the legalized abortion issue, according to Mrs. Eagleton.

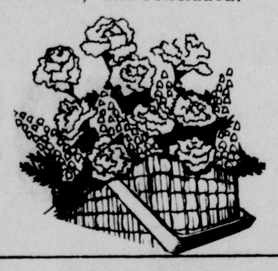
"There are so many Catholic congressmen that received pressure from their districts, especially from St. Louis," she said of the abortion issue. Asked about her stand on legalized abortion Mrs. Eagleton answered, "I'm definitely against it ... I'm a Catholic, too," she added with a smile.

Mrs. Eagleton said her family is important to her and she tries to maintain a normal life even though they are constantly in the public's eye.

"The biggest changes were moving from St. Louis to Jefferson City and then to Washington, D. C. The lifestyle in Washington is certainly different, but we always considered the moves temporary," she said.

Barbara Eagleton admitted she enjoys the political life.

"One of the children may be interested in a political career, but I'm certainly not fostering it. We want our children to follow their own interests," she concluded.



D.R. Pratts mark 50th anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Pratt of Cape Girardeau celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary June 23 with a family dinner at Two Tony's Restaurant in Sikeston.

Mr. and Mrs. Pratt's children and their families attended the celebration. Mr. and Mrs. John Harvey Pratt and Geoffry and Pam of Columbia, were present along with Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Mueller and daughter Laurie of Belleville, Ill., and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Ludwig of Cape Girardeau.

Mr. and Mrs. Pratt were married June 25, 1924 in Connelsville, Pa.

Pratt, who is retired, was formerly employed by Hutson Furniture Co.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Stains, stains won't go away

By Polly Cramer

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — I cannot remove the stains from my steel storm windows. These probably were caused by the weather. I have tried using steel wool but that did not help.

My Pet Peeve is that the Comic section of our paper now uses print so small that I will have to get glasses to be able to read it. — WILMA.

DEAR POLLY — Lorene and those other "busy" women — Why should I make out my check for groceries at home? My purse might be stolen on the way there or I could lose the check and wind up buying someone else's groceries.

Most of the big markets have express lanes for those people in a hurry or only buying a few things. Most important I spend 40 or 50 minutes buying my weekly groceries with a total that adds up to quite a sum (at least a dollar a minute). I think this entitles me to spend a couple of minutes writing out a check at the counter and even taking the time to ask what the date is. Thanks for listening. — DARLENE.

DEAR POLLY — I have a suggestion for Lorene and others who are bugged in the supermarket lines while having to wait for someone to write a check. This whole procedure takes less than five minutes and is an indication of how rushed we have let ourselves become. To make the time pass more quickly smile and start a conversation with the next person in line (comment on her darling baby or ask about her brand of peanut butter) or spend that time turning all purchases so the cashier can quickly and easily read the prices. This is all an attitude. Life is so much more pleasant if we look on the cheery side of things. — JO ANN.

DEAR POLLY — When sewing I clip or pin the pattern instruction sheet on a curtain or wall just behind my sewing machine and at eye level. I merely look up and check on the next step or to find picture assistance while both hands are busy following instructions. I use these aids much more than I would if I had to hunt and then unfold the sheet.

I cut the top from a facial tissue box leaving about a 1/2-inch rim for strength, placed this on a cabinet shelf to hold all the various size of plastic lids for small bowls, cartons, freezer containers, etc. The size of each as they stand on edge helps me find the right one for a certain container. — MARIE A.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: My husband spends money like it was going out of style. He buys anything he wants, no matter what the cost. If it's another gun for $250, fine and dandy. A third camera for $150 is O.K., too. He thinks nothing of paying $40 for a pair of shoes. I won't tell you what his suits cost. You'd get sick.

His closets are jammed, yet he keeps buying, buying. This man makes $20,000 a year and he's no kid. He's 52 years old.

When I ask him why he continues this mindless buying, he says, "Because I never had anything when I was a kid and now I can have whatever I want."

We are always broke and the bills are stacked all over the place.

The doctor says that's why I have week- long headaches and high blood pressure. Do you think I can change him or should I just give up. We've been married five years. -- Busted In Illinois.

Dear Busted: You say he's no kid. Well, I have news for you. He IS a kid. Forget about changing him. No way.

Now that you have an opinion from your doctor, I suggest you get one from your lawyer. Your letter contains too many unanswered questions, such as -- do you work? Do you have money from a previous marriage? Do you get an allowance? This I can tell you; no man is worth week-long headaches and high blood pressure.

Dear Ann Landers: With all your contacts, surely you can find some help for us.

Our 16- year - old son is a problem. He refuses to admit it. He rejects all efforts to get him to a counselor. He says, "Everything is just fine."

Outside the home he is bright, outgoing, charming and downright attractive. The minute he walks through the door he's a different person -- sullen, disrespectful, uncooperative, selfish, inconsiderate, hateful and mean.

We have evidence that he is breaking the law. I won't go into detail but what he is doing could have serious repercussions. He considers the law regarding such activities stupid and refuses to listen when we tell him he could get into serious trouble.

This boy is making our lives a living hell. There is no peace of mind from day to day. He laughs when we warn him to keep within the law. He says we are squares and that he can handle his own life. We need help and we need it now. Please, Ann, guide us. -- Desperate Parents

Dear Parents: It's only a guess, but I suspect your son is smoking pot. This might sound loony to you, but I suggest that you and your husband go for counseling and learn how to handle your anxieties about the boy. It may be that your overreacting may be compelling him to defy you. Ask your family doctor to recommend a counselor, or the county or state mental health society can help you.

Dear Ann Landers: I read somewhere that a tattoo can be removed by rubbing salt on it, but it should be done under a doctor's supervision.

I had some tattoo work done on my arms when I was young and foolish and now I want to get rid of it.

Please tell me if common table salt is used and what kind of doctor should do it. -- Dumb Past

Dear D.P.: A tattoo can be removed by applying table salt to that area (it should be done by a dermatologist), but the more modern approach, dermabrasion -- a fast- rotating sandpaper wheel -- produces neater results.

It's not easy to recognize love, especially the first time around. Acquaint yourself with the guidelines. Read Ann Landers' booklet, "Love or Sex and How To Tell the Difference." For a copy, mail 35 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self- addressed envelope with your request to Ann Landers, P. O. Box 3346, Chicago, Ill. 60654.

Thieves hit Elks Lodge

BLOOMFIELD — The Stoddard County sheriff's department today reported four burglaries over the weekend.

Thieves took a safe containing approximately $300 in cash, $200 in checks and money from a juke box, cigaret machine and a cash drawer from the Dexter Elks Lodge on Highway 14 West. The burglary is believed to have occurred sometime Sunday.

A car belonging to Allen Farmer of Dexter was reportedly stolen sometime before 11 p.m. Sunday from the Pentecostal Church parking lot. The car was recovered in Dexter early today.

A house owned by Raymond Humphries on Five Mile Road west of Dexter was broken into sometime over the weekend. Humphries was moving and only a few items were left in the house. Nothing was reported missing.

The Bunge Corp., located near Avert, was burglarized over the weekend. Taken in the burglary were two sets of scales and a check- writing machine. Burglars got into the building by breaking out a window.

Grain

CHICAGO (AP) — Wheat, soybean and corn futures prices were sharply higher in early dealings on the Chicago Board of Trade today.

On the opening, Chicago wheat futures were 6 to 10 cents a bushel higher, July 4.20; Gulf hard red wheat was not traded; corn was 1½ to 5 higher, July 2.99; oats were 1 lower to ½ higher, July 1.39 and soybeans were 4 to 15 higher, July 5.72.

Baseball stand vandalized

EAST PRAIRIE — For the second time this year equipment for the summer baseball program has been stolen from the storage area in the concession stand at H. A. Jones Park.

The lock on the building was pryed off sometime Saturday night, and about $150 worth of new equipment, including bats, balls, helmets and catcher equipment was stolen.

Jones Hedge, a baseball commissioner, said today a $25 reward is being offered for information leading to recovery of the equipment.

Vanduser store robbed Friday

BENTON — Approximately seven shirts and hats were stolen from Polley's Store at Vanduser sometime Friday night, according to Scott County Deputy Bud Jones.

Entry was gained by breaking a window.

The robbery was discovered Saturday morning by Mrs. Ida Mae Polley the owner.

Carpenter shot after fight with girlfriend

ESSEX — Howard Carpenter of Essex was shot Saturday night when he attempted to force his way into the home of his girlfriend, Mary Poe, according to Stoddard County Sheriff Ralph Mouser.

The incident occurred at 9 p.m. when Carpenter attempted to cut the screen on Mrs. Poe's door. The couple, estimated to be in their early 60s, reportedly had been arguing earlier in a local tavern.

Carpenter was shot with a .22 caliber rifle just below the right rib cage. He was taken to Dexter Memorial Hospital where his condition is listed as satisfactory.

Electric oven catches fire

CHARLESTON — Two calls were answered over the weekend by the fire department.

At 5:50 p.m. Sunday, the department was called to the Dale Litchford home, 6 Crescent Drive, to extinguish a fire in an electric oven. The only damage reported was to the oven.

At 1:30 p.m. Saturday, the department was called to extinguish a grass fire at 406 N. Locust St.

Drugs worth $193 stolen

CHARLESTON — Drugs, valued at $193 were taken this weekend in a burglary of the Clinic Pharmacy in the Fenton Clinical Group building, 1200 E. Marshall St.

The burglary, which occurred sometime between 4 p.m. Saturday and 1:10 p.m. Sunday, was discovered by Dr. T. P. Fenton. A door on the east side of the building was pryed open to gain access to the main building. The door to the pharmacy department was also pried open.

Over 1,100 assorted tablets were taken. Approximately $600 in cash in the drug department was not stolen.

The Charleston police department is investigating.

Three Charleston juveniles were apprehended by police at 9:12 p.m. Saturday at the A. D. Simpson Park on S. Main Street. The three reportedly had broken into the concession stand and were in the process of stealing six 32-ounce bottles of soft drinks. The three were turned over to juvenile authorities.

Thieves enter local homes

The Phyllis N. Weathers home, 206 Kramer Drive, was burglarized sometime between June 24 and Saturday, according to police.

Taken were two green tents, valued at $90; a set of golf clubs, worth $100; one dark wood desk, valued at $200; and one iron bedstead.

Police said the golf clubs were taken from a closet and the other things from the basement. There was no sign of forced entry.

Police said someone returned the tents Sunday, but the other items were still missing.

Eight pictures, valued at $50 were taken from a wall in the Jane Benthall apartment, 911 Davis Blvd.

The theft occurred between 5:30 p.m. Friday and 7:15 p.m. Sunday. Police said there was no sign of forced entry.

reduction was seen in the Memphis market nearly a month ago. Ring explained, "They are on a different market than we are. We usually run about four cents a gallon cheaper anyway."

Ronald Acker, the manager of Turner Dairy refused Friday to release any information about his milk prices. He said, "It's not the sort of thing the public ought to know."

Foremost Foods local supervisor, Joe Evans of Sikeston said Friday he had heard some word that prices might be reduced, but would wait for orders from his manager.

Lester Mills, district manager of Foremost Foods in Paragould, Ark., told The Daily Standard Friday, "If the market goes up, we'll go up; if the market goes down, we'll go down." Mills would not comment on any specific plans to change Foremost's milk prices.

Mrs. Cleora Woods, speaking for Woods Dairy in Sikeston, said, "There have been rumors that there will be a price decrease, but we have no official notice."

Thanks to the "milk war", local consumers can purchase milk for about the same price as they paid in February or March.

The charge stemmed from a shooting on May 23 of John Davis, at the trailer park. She had waived a preliminary hearing and was bound over for trial in Circuit Court. She had returned Wednesday from the state hospital in Farmington where she had been ordered for mental examination.

The body is at Richards Funeral Home in New Madrid pending location of relatives.

Coroner Gene Clayton said today an inquest will not be held.

According to highway patrol records, the fatality raised the number of traffic deaths in Southeast Missouri this year to 53, compared with 50 persons killed on area highways at the same time last year.

A rural Perryville bicyclist was critically injured at 12:20 p.m. Sunday four miles west of Perryville on Route Four when his bicycle was struck by a car driven by Guy Samuel Matthews, 23, of Greenville, Ill.

The accident occurred when Matthews, in the westbound lane, sounded his horn at Anthony Wayne Milburn, 9, of Perryville Route One, who was eastbound in the westbound lane. Matthews swerved his car to the left and struck the bicycle and boy with the right front of the car.

The boy was taken to Perry County Hospital in Perryville and later transferred to Cardinal Glennon Hospital in St. Louis.

Fern Murphy, 51, of Chaffee was seriously injured at 8:40 p.m. Sunday on an unmarked county road three miles southeast of Rockview when her northbound car, on the wrong side of the road, collided head on with a southbound auto driven by Thomas B. Heisserer, 23, of Cape Girardeau.

Mrs. Murphy was taken to Chaffee General Hospital.

A Knobel, Ark. woman was seriously injured at 10:50 p.m. Saturday on Highway 160 three miles east of Doniphan when the car in which she was riding ran off the road on a curve and struck a culvert.

Roberta Conway, 36, was taken to Doctors Hospital in Poplar Bluff for treatment. The driver of the car, Jessie Mack Conway, 36, of Knobel was not injured.

An accident at 10:40 p.m. Saturday on a gravel road two miles west of Qulin resulted in minor injuries to two persons.

According to the patrol, a westbound car driven by Billy L. Jones, 16, of Qulin went out of control on a curve and ran into a ditch.

Jones and a passenger, Samuel Joe Hill, 15, of Qulin were taken to Lucy Lee Hospital in Poplar Bluff.

pace, if one considers the rate of inflation. I suggest that it gradually relax the policy," he remarked.

"They might find, as many economists have said, that interest rates will fall and the stock market and the home- building industry will rebound," he remarked.

Eagleton said if the relaxation of monetary policy does not help, then the Federal Reserve could simply return to a condition of tight monetary policy.

In an interview before the banquet, Sen. Eagleton commented on his trip to Cape Girardeau Saturday morning when he talked to businessmen and officials about the national flood insurance program.

"The objective of the program was to provide communities and citizens with a fairer and faster way of obtaining assistance than was available under the old disaster relief program," he said. "It was never intended to become a bludgeon to enforce federal building and zoning policies favored by some bureaucrats at the Department of Housing and Urban Development."

Eagleton said he had written to chairman John Sparkman, D-Ala., of the Senate Banking, Housing and Urban Affairs Committee calling for early oversight hearings and possible amendments to the act.

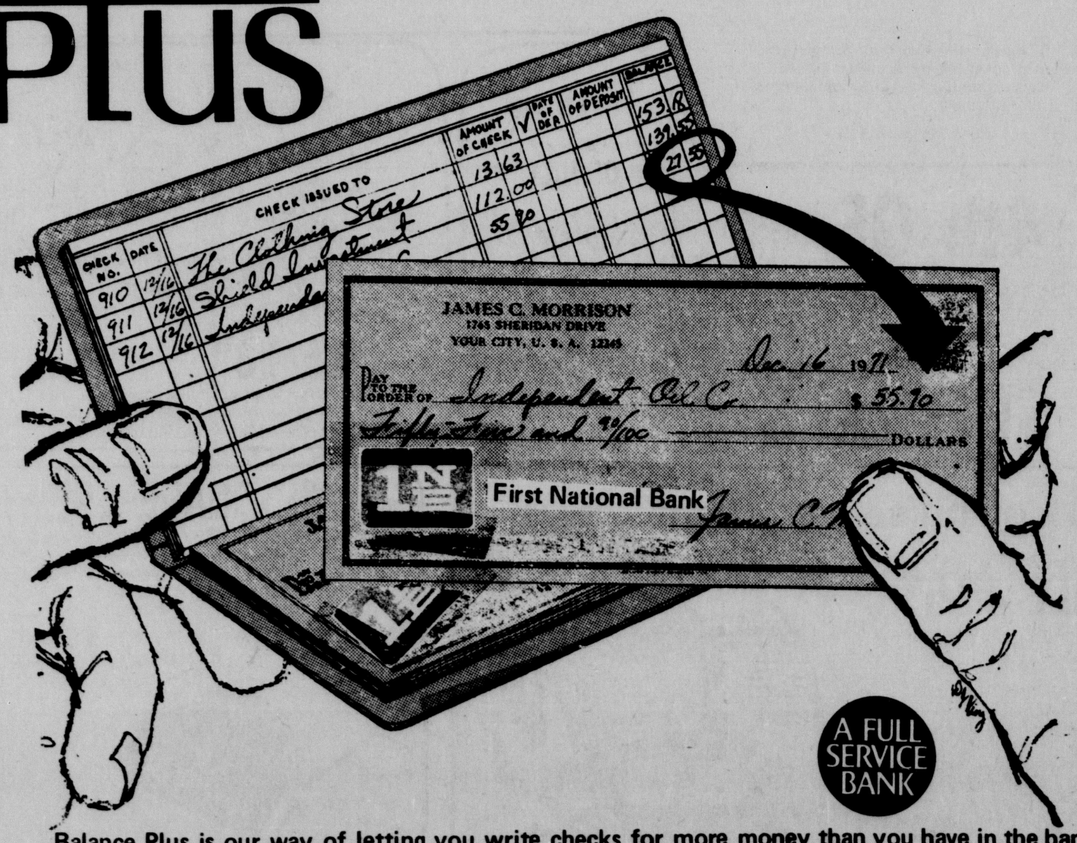
balance PLUS



A FULL SERVICE BANK

Balance Plus is our way of letting you write checks for more money than you have in the bank. Here's how it works. We give you a cash reserve balance on your checking account. Then when you need some extra cash for a special purchase or an emergency, it's there waiting for you. You just write an ordinary check and reserve cash is transferred to your account. Then each month a small amount of cash is transferred from your checking account balance back into the reserve. It's like writing yourself a loan. You pay absolutely nothing to have your Balance Plus account set up. No charge until you use it, and then you pay only a small charge o the amount you use. With Balance Plus, you'll always have money for emergencies like hospital bills or car reapirs. Or you can pay cash for your new suit. Splurge on a vacation. Take advantage of special sales. And overdrafts will be a thing of the past.

Cardinals surprise Mets

NEW YORK (AP) — Paul Pryor had his thumb upraised, signaling out. Chris Pelekoudas had his palms down, signaling safe. The New York Mets had a hard-earned and desperately needed 4-3 victory.

Then, suddenly, Pelekoudas had his thumb in the air, too, and the Mets, who had flung themselves happily into their clubhouse, had to come out again.

But not for long. St. Louis' Bake McBride took care of that with a two-run homer that gave the Cardinals a 10-inning 5-3 victory and a Sunday doubleheader sweep.

It was a wild scene at Shea Stadium. The Mets, who had lost the first game 5-2, were trailing 3-1 going into the bottom of the ninth in the nightcap.

But then things began to happen. Don Hahn singled, Ron Hodges, who had homered earlier, singled. George Theodore bunted for a hit. Nobody out and the bases loaded.

Wayne Garrett, whose errors at third had helped the Cards to the winning run in the first game and the tiebreaker in the second one, hit a sinking liner to center field. McBride shorthopped it and threw to third, forcing Hodges, who thought the ball might be caught.

Hahn scored on the play and Theodore came home with the tying run on Ted Martinez' single. That brought up Cleon Jones. He hit a bullet toward Reggie Smith. The right fielder raced in, dived and...

And what? Pelekoudas, the first base umpire, on the rim of the outfield grass, signaled the ball was a hit, that Smith had trapped it. Garrett crossed home plate with what seemed to be the winning run.

But while Pelekoudas was signaling hit, Pryor, the second base umpire, was signaling out—that Smith had caught the ball for the third out.

Smith, who rolled over and held his glove aloft after grabbing the ball, tore in at Pelekoudas, screaming and jumping up and down. And, while the Mets were disappearing into their dugout, the Cardinals, led by Manager Red Schoendienst, were charging out of theirs.

"We decided to review the whole thing," Pelekoudas said later. "It was a novel situation. The whole question was who had the best view of the play. I had a good shot at it. It appeared to be a trap. But Paul said he had the edge, that he was further out on the outfield grass. He said the man caught it and I took his word for it. He said to me, 'Chris, I swear the man caught it.' That was good enough for me."

But a taped replay of the controversial catch, someone mentioned, appeared to show that the ball had, in fact, been trapped.

"I'm not going to talk about television replays," Pelekoudas interrupted. "I wish I could go back and review a few calls I've made in my time. But The Man Upstairs gave me only two eyes and a certain amount of judgment to work with.

"Reggie swore up and down that he caught it...and Yogi swore up and down that he didn't."

Yogi Berra, the Mets' manager, was swearing plenty, both during the confusion that followed Smith's catch and in the clubhouse later.

"I've gotten cheated three or four times this year," he growled. "Every time I go out and ask the ump to check with another one, he says, 'It's my play and that's how I saw it.' Then I've asked another ump and he's said, 'It's not my play.' But now everybody's asking everybody.

"Chris told me Pryor was on the outfield grass, closer to the play. Bull! He was on the dirt. And Pryor was looking straight in on the play. Chris had a better view. He was off to the side. He could see if the ball was trapped or not.

"Then I asked for the ball," Berra said, mentioning that he wanted to look for possible grass stains. "All of a sudden, nobody knew where the ball was."

"I tossed it on the mound when I was running back to the dugout," Smith said. "Man, there's no way that was a trap. The only way you can trap a ball is if the glove is up and down. I had it flat on the grass. No way that was a trap. No way it could've been. I had it."

And Schoendienst, delighted with the sweep that gave St. Louis a 2½-game lead over Montreal and Philadelphia in the National League East, said:

"It was Pryor's play. He called it out. He called it right."

But what about the TV replay, he was asked.

"Pictures can lie," he grinned.

Mike Tyson triggered a three-run fourth inning off Jerry Koosman and Ken Reitz homered in a two-run eighth off reliever Tug McGraw for the first-game victory. McGraw also was the victim of McBride's game-winning shot in the nightcap.

Griffin 2-hits Bank

Harts rallied for a 12-10 win over Eagles and Home Materials rode the two hit pitching performance of Griffin to Jr. Babe Ruth league wins.

The Eagles out- hit Harts 9-5, but 10 walks and poor fielding opened the door for Harts, who claimed a 5-2 lead in the first inning, but had to go eight frames to claim the win after the Eagles had rallied to tie the game in the last of the seventh.

Ken Standridge fanned 10 and gave up only two walks and led the team in hitting with two hits, including a double. Gilbow was the games leading batsman, with three hits and a double for the Eagles.

Matthews and Lefler had two hits apiece to lead a six hit Home Material attack to back Griffin's top performance.

Smith doubled and had both of the Bank of Sikeston's two hits.

The New Madrid County Little - League – Babe Ruth baseball tournament gets underway at Parma at 7:30 this evening with Lilbourn and Marston Little League teams squaring off in the event opener. It was incorrectly reported in Saturday's edition of The Daily Standard that these two teams would play Thursday, but the winner of the game will play New Madrid Thursday.

Parma and Risco little league teams collide Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. and New Madrid's Jr. Babe Ruth team plays Parma at 8:30. Final first round games match Lilbourn and Marston's Jr. Babe Ruth teams Thursday at 8:30 with the finals set Friday in both divisions.

Royals rally clips Oakland

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Baseball managers are an optimistic breed but you could not blame Kansas City's Jack McKeon if he didn't see the bright side against Oakland.

"We're down 4-0 and only one hit against Catfish Hunter," said McKeon, considering the situation his Royals faced in the sixth inning of Sunday's game. Kansas City had won two of the first three games in the weekend series, so McKeon wasn't feeling too terrible. "You start thinking you'll settle for a tie in the series," he admitted.

But the Royals had other ideas. "You have to give our guys credit," McKeon continued. "There was some kind of atmosphere in the dugout."

It got even better when the Royals kayoed Hunter for five runs in the sixth and then came from behind twice more to defeat the American League West Division leaders 8-7.

Elsewhere in the league Sunday, Cleveland battered Boston 9-2, Baltimore shut out New York 3-0, Texas walloped California 9-2, Chicago split a doubleheader with Minnesota, winning 8-3 and then losing 6-3, and Milwaukee divided a pair with Detroit, winning 4-1 before losing 3-2.

The win put the Royals within 2½ games of the A's.

Rangers 9, Angels 2

Texas also moved within 2½ games of the A's by whacking California.

The Rangers, top hitting team in the majors, exploded for six runs in a wild fifth inning capped by Cesar Tovar's two-run single.

Indians 9, Red Sox 2

George Hendrick poked a three-run homer, helping Cleveland slug Boston and moving the Indians within 2½ games of first-place Boston after three victories in their four-game series with the Red Sox.

Brewers 4-2, Tigers 1-3

Jim Northrup drove in two runs with a first inning homer and then helped Detroit build another with a third inning sngle as the Tigers defeated Milwaukee 3-2 in the second game of a doubleheader. The Brewers had taken the opener 4-1 despite being held hitless for five innings by Woodie Fryman.

Orioles 3 Yankees 0

Mike Cuellar tossed a six-hitter and Baltimore shut out New York for the second straight game. The Orioles scored all their runs with the aid of an error and a balk.

Twins 3-6, White Sox 8-3

Jorge Orta ripped six hits including five straight in the first game as the Chicago White Sox split a doubleheader with Minnesota, winning the opener 8-3 but dropping the second 6-3.

Orta's first-game hits gave him eight straight, including three in Saturday night's game. His streak ended in the first inning of the nightcap.

National League scores: Pittsburgh 11-3, Philadelphia 82; St. Louis 5-5, New York 2-3; Montreal 10, Chicago 2; Atlanta 7, Cincinnati 3; Los Angeles 5, San Francisco 3; Houston 3-5, San Diego 1-6.

NFL strike near

WASHINGTON (AP) — The first picket lines are expected in San Diego on Wednesday as the players' union strikes the National Football League in a dispute over the so-called freedom issues.

Rookies and free agents, who do not become eligible to join the NFL Players Association until the regular season starts, may hold the key to the outcome. But it's a matter of doubt whether they'll play even the exhibition games.

Bill Curry of the Houston Oilers, president of the union, scheduled a news conference at the association headquarters here to discuss action on the strike which began officially at midnight Sunday.

Negotiations on a new collective bargaining agreement between the players and the NFL Management Council, the owners' bargaining agent, broke down last Wednesday when the two parties reached an almost insurmountable impasse.

"The basic issue is the right of a player to move from one team to another when his contract has expired," Curry said. "We think he should have that right just as everyone else has."

John Thompson, executive director of the management council, said the owners offered to modify the contract system, proposed increased insurance and pension benefits and were responsible for bringing the federal mediator into the dispute.

"We've done some substantial things but they refused to budge off their position of total freedom or withdraw a single demand," said Thompson.

The players went on strike four years ago, but the 1970 boycott ended before actual preseason play started. This year's walkout shapes up as long and tough to settle.

The club owners have said they intend to play rookies and free agents if the veterans don't report. If enough report and the fans are willing to pay to see them, the players union probably will have to buckle and modify its 63 demands.

On the other hand, if the association is successful in keeping the rookies and free agents out of camp, the owners will have to make concessions.

The union's executive committee, headed by Curry, is planning to be on hand for the start of picketing at the San Diego training camp. The committee also plans to appear at the other camps scheduled to open this week, including the Evanston, Ill., site of the College All-Stars who are to play the Super Bowl champion Miami Dolphins in Chicago June 26.

Elks fail to win

The Elks were the only Sr. Babe Ruth league team to fail to post a victory over the weekend. Leible Implement claimed a 8-3 win over the Elks, Security National Bank edged the Optimist 6-5 and Optimist took Leible Implement 10-9. Security National Bank and Elks failed to have enough players to play their Saturday evening game.

Dennis Cobb stopped the Elks on two hits Friday night and got an 11 hit backing from his teammates, rallying from a 3-2 deficit in the fourth with five big runs.

Bill Schatzley, Rick Dyer and Cobb had two hits team for Leible while Dwain Self and Ron Newman had the Elks lone safties.

Don Taylor mastered a three hitter for Security National as they held off a fourth inning rally to preserve their 6-5 win over Optimist. Mark Couch provided the hittin with three safties.

Mark Couch and Brian Crites doubled for the winners and Cris Alberts slammed a big triple for the losers.

Charlie Miller pitched and hit Optimist to their 10-9 decision over Lieble, going five for five at the plate and holding Leible at bay with a 10 strikeout performance.

Ken Newton and Dennis Cobb had two hits apiece to pace Leible. Newton doubled.

John Leible hit a double for the losers and Bill Lewis connected for a three run triple for Optimist.

Deer season has changes

JEFFERSON CITY — The Conservation Commission has set a nine-day 1974 deer season Nov. 16-24 with some significant changes from past seasons.

One major change is that Unit Six, the east central area of Missouri, will be divided into two units. There have been 10 major management units through the state.

Unit Six is unique because there are areas within it that have both too many deer and not enough deer. The boundaries of Unit 6A will be Interstate 70 on the north, Highway 63 on the west, Highway 50 on the south and the Mississippi River on the east -- basically the Missouri River hills.

Unit 6B will be the remainder of the old Unit Six, south of Highway 50.

By management units, the season will be bucks only from Nov. 16-22 in Units 1, 4, 5, 7, 8 and 9 and any deer Nov. 23-24. In Units 2, 3, 6B and 10, the entire season will be bucks only.

In Unit 6A, there will be a quota of 1,200 antlerless deer permits, an innovation in Missouri hunting. "The quota is intended to limit the harvest of anterless deer to less than 1,100," says Mike Milonski, Wildlife Division chief.

Farmers as defined in the Wildlife Code may take a doe on the farm where they live any time during the season in Unit 6A.

Other hunters will apply for the antlerless deer permits in Unit 6A and will be drawn by lot.

The Commission also re-defined an antlered deer. "The regulation last year was intended to protect fawn bucks, but permit the taking of spike bucks," Milonski says. "There was a lot of confusion, so we've re-defined it."

The new definition reads that a legal buck must have "one antler at least three inches long."

Wildlife biologists have found that no buck fawn ever has had a three inch antler and spike bucks rarely have antlers shorter than three inches.

The season continues to have the bucks - only portion first, with the antlerless deer portion last. "Analysis of 1973 shows that this puts the most pressure on bucks and limits the harvest of does, which is what we want for a healthy, growing herd," Milonski says.

Hunting pressure in 1973 was up considerably. Permit sales jumped 12.9 per cent, compared to the 10- year average of 7.2 -- possibly spurred by high meat prices.

The number of man-days (881,934) increased 10.8 per cent, a new record. Hunting pressure was up in every unit except Unit One, northwest Missouri, and even in Units Four, Six and 10 which were bucks- only the entire season.

Hunter numbers increased 25 per cent in Unit Four, western Missouri, and 12 per cent in Unit Six. The total firearms harvest was up 10 per cent, but the statewide doe harvest was down1.5 per cent.

Other squad members who attended the clinic were Rita Cooper and Sally Poyner. The girls were taught new cheers, tumbling and pom-pom routines. They received several outstanding and excellent ribbons.

Eagleton urges farm research

COLUMBIA — Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton today told University of Missouri agriculture school officials that he was confident the Senate would approve a significant increase in farm research funds this year.

Eagleton, who is a member of the Senate Agriculture Appropriations Subcommittee, made that prediction during a tour of research projects at the school.

He said there was deep concern in Congress about the state of agriculture research in this country today, noting a 13 per cent decline in scientific man- years devoted to crop and livestock research over the past eight years.

"At a time when this country and the world are facing critical food shortages, it is imperative that we begin to build now for a more productive farm economy through basic research," Eagleton said, adding, "Increased farm productivity not only will help farmers increase their income, but is the American housewife's best hope for keeping the family grocery bill at the low levels we have enjoyed in the past.

Eagleton said he was supporting an increase in Agricultural Research Service appropriations and also a major boost in funds for state agriculture experiment stations.

He said he was particularly strong for a proposed increase of $36 million over 1974 appropriations for work being done by state universities and land grant colleges.

In addition to crop and livestock research, Eagleton said it was important that an effort be made to develop new methods and substitutes to offset expected long- range fertilizer shortages. He said development of ways to harness wind and solar power for specific farm use should also have a high priority.

Cancer research gets giant boost

COLUMBIA — Fundamental research that may help in the early detection of cancer has been given a giant boost at the University of Missouri- Columbia.

The National Cancer Institute has renewed its contract with the Experiment Station Chemical Laboratory (ESCL) for the fourth straight year - this time to the tune of $163,000. In a little over 3 years, the project has received $434,000 in contract cancer research support.

Dr. Charles Gehrke ESCL director and professor of agricultural chemistry, and his Lunar Science Team of Dr. Robert Zumwalt, Kenneth Kuo, and other staff members, have developed advanced techniques for meauring molecular changes that occur when cancer is present.

Besides their usefulness in cancer detection, these chemical analyses help doctors who are using chemotherapy as a cancer treatment.

"By following biological markers through the blood and urine, the doctors will know when chemotherapy should be stopped or continued," explained Gehrke. "Further, the tests will help the physicians to know when the body can no longer tolerate massive drug doses or combinations of cancer drugs."

Professor Gehrke, Kuo, and Zumwalt were the first in the world to develop the new chemical methods for analyzing polyamines, a group of molecules in urine, and the metabolism break- down products of the genetic code molecules. They have also developed a method for rapidly analyzing the amino acids in urine and in another method are able to measure the special sugar- protein ratios in blood which have been shown as changes in breast cancer.

"Urine and blood are very complicated and difficult to analyze because of the hundreds of different molecules in them," noted Gehrke. "The tough part is determining and separating out what you're looking for. Then you just apply all the chromatographic chemistry that you know to search for it, identify it, and determine it."

The cancer research contract was first awarded to Professor Gehrke after he developed new methods for analyzing genetic code molecules and amino acids in samples taken from the moon in the search for extraterrestrial life.

At UMC, Deans Richard J. Aldreich and Elmer R. Kiehl stated, "We are proud of the scientific accomplishments of Gherke and his team and wish them every success in their experiments."

So far, the chemical methods have been used to analyze blood and urine samples from 1500 patients with various kinds of cancer from the Mayo Clinic, Rochester; Johns Hopkins Medical School, Baltimore; Veteran's Hospital, Washington, DC; National Cancer Institute, Bethesda; and the Columbia Cancer Research Center (CRC).

Dr. James Hueser, M.D. of CRC, and Dr. T. Phillip Waalkes, M.D., Project Officer of the National Cancer Institute, direct all of the medical and chemotherapy studies. Dr. Gehrke and his team of analytical biochemists are the sample analyzers.

Four different reports on this research have been submitted to the Journal of Chromatography, Cancer Research, and Journal of Laboratory and Clinical Medicine for publication.

Guardsmen eligible for increase

JEFFERSON CITY — Major General Charles M. Kiefner, the adjutant general of Missouri has announced that guardsmen and civil service personnel are eligible for a retroactive pay increase for the period Oct. 1 through Dec. 31, 1972.

"We will authorize the mailing of checks to the individuals concerned after we receive further instructions from the National Guard Bureau in Washington, D. C.," Gen. Kiefner said.

The guardsmen's eligibility was carried in an April 16 Army message which announced that Executive Order 11777, issued by President Nixon on April 12, moved the effective date of the civil service pay law from Jan. 1, 1973 to Oct. 1, 1972.

As a result, guardsmen and civil service employes now are due the difference in pay for the three months. The Presidential action amended Executive Order 11691 of Dec. 15, 1972, which first announced the increase.

"We are most concerned," Kiefner added, "about those guardsmen and civil service personnel who have been retired or separated from the Missouri National Guard during those three months. These individuals are due retroactive pay and should maintain contact with their former units to insure payment."

According to Kiefner, the Department of Defense must provide additional military guidance about how guardsmen are to be paid, adding that they have no idea when they will be able to begin paying guardsmen the retroactive pay due them.

"We are not talking about much money for the individual," Kiefner replied, "but every little bit helps. A Sergeant E-5 with six years of service would be entitled to an additional $12.24 for the three MUTA-4s for the three- month period."

BENEFIT GAME SET

NEW YORK (AP) — The 12th annual Mayor's Trophy game between the New York Yankees and Mets will be played at Shea Stadium Thursday night, May 30. Shea will be the home of the Yankees the next two American League seasons while Yankee Stadium is totally reconstructed.

All proceeds will be divided between the two teams's foundations that individually support amateur baseball in New York's metropolitan area. More than $1.25 million in net gate receipts have gone to sandlot baseball programs in the past.

Sewage facility regulations approved

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Clean Water Commission has approved regulations on sewage facilities for future subdivisions throughout Missouri.

Although there are many exemptions, the regulations will generally prohibit the use of septic tanks in subdivisions of 10 or more lots of less than 15,000 square feet each or in subdivisions of 10 or more dwellings.

The regulations will go into effect 10 days after they are filed with the secretary of state. A commission staff member said after Wednesday's approval that they will be filed Friday.

Existing developments, as long as the septic tanks do not cause pollution, won't be affected.

Single family residences and developments of less than 10 connecting lots or developments with less than 10 houses can have septic tanks. However, the owner of a home with a septic tank would be required to hook onto a sewer line if it runs within 100 feet of the home. The homeowner could be exempted if he could show that such a connection would be non-feasible and that his septic tank meets commission requirements.

Only centralized sewage collection and treatment systems can be used on lots or tracts less than 15,000 square feet but septic tanks can be used on an interim basis.

Septic tanks can be constructed in subdivisions where the lots exceed three acres in size if the engineering report shows a central sewage collection and treatment system to be not feasible.

Septic tanks cannot be used on lots or tracts of less than three acres unless it can be shown that a central facility is not economically feasible. In that case, the effluent must be retained on the lot or tract of origin and must be 25 feet or more from the property line.

Also exempted from the septic tank ban will be developers who have sold 20 per cent of the lots in a subdivision already started, developers of recreational subdivisions already started and with less than 15,000 square feet per lot, and developers of subdivisions who could prove that a central sewage system is not feasible.

The purpose of the regulations is to prevent pollution of lakes, rivers or underground water supplies by septic tank seepage.

It was the third hearing on the regulations.

The regulations require developers to publish notices in newspapers 30 days before filing an application with the commission for an exemption, and the commission shall act on the application within 30 days after hearings are held on the application.

Colleges cut standards

NEW YORK (AP) — Colleges competing for federal aid are lowering standards and undermining faculty quality to hire more women and blacks, according to a report sponsored by the Carnegie Commission on Higher Education.

The report by Dr. Richard A. Lester said the inadequate number of qualified faculty members available from the two groups has forced the universities to recruit from each other, playing "musical chairs" with their faculty.

The report also charged that new minority and women appointees were being paid more than white male faculty members at the same level, and that some of the appointees do not have the qualifications required for their tenured and nontenured positions.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare is requiring 1,500 colleges and universities with federal contracts to develop affirmative action programs for increasing faculty representation of minority groups and guaranteeing their equal treatment.

Wild game trade approved

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The largest interstate trade of wild game involving Missouri has been approved by the state Conservation Commission.

The commission said Wednesday that over the next three years Missouri will send 260 wild turkeys to Iowa in of its wild turkeys in trades for return for 5,000 Iowa pheasants. other wild game because the

The trade, according to wild turkey population in the officials, is aimed at extending state has passed the optimum the state's pheasant range from point.

The commission also said the 17 counties in which pheasant hunting is currently permitted.

The commission also said trades are being planned with both Texas and Wisconsin in which wild turkeys from Missouri will be exchanged for ruffed grouse.

Firefighters say city doesn't pay minimum wage

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo. (AP)—The president of the Cape Girardeau Association of Firefighters, Local 1084, said Friday the union has filed charges with the Department of Labor saying the city is not complying with the new federal minimum wage law.

Max Jauch said some city firefighters were not being paid the new minimum of $1.90 per hour.

Jauch said City Manager W.G. Lawley was notified of the charges when they were filed two weeks ago, but replied that the 13 firefighters affected would not be paid the new minimum wage until all appeal procedures were completed.

"In Mr. Lawley's opinion, the city is paying the standard now," Jauch said.

NOBODY HAS ANY MONEY

NEW YORK (AP) — A series of meetings with each of the city's five borough presidents has been set up by City Council President Paul O'Dwyer, to try to save the free concert performances of opera by the Metropolitan Opera in parks during the summer.

Otrabanda Company to perform

The Otrabanda Company of Yellow Springs, Ohio, will make its second annual appearance in New Madrid on July 4 to perform an all-new "River Raft Revue". The vaudeville - circus - carnival show will be at 7 p.m. in the company's circus tent erected in the city park on Mill and Crisler streets. No admission will be charged. Members of the troupe, standing, from left, include Nelson Camp, Steve Stern, Joanne Zonis, Ellen Maddow, Roger Babb and David Dawkins. Kneeling are Diane Brown and Graham Paul.

'River Raft Revue' scheduled July 4

NEW MADRID — The Otrabanda Company, a professional theater troupe from Yellow Springs, Ohio, will make its second annual appearance at New Madrid on July 4 to present an all-new "River Raft Revue", which will be free to the public.

The performance is scheduled at 7 p.m. in the company's red and yellow circus tent, which will be erected at the city park at the corner of Mill and Crisler streets.

John Maynard, advance agent and one of the company musicians, said the marching band would like to greet the people and entertain those who might want to picnic at the site before the performance.

Otrabanda members are floating down the Mississippi River on a home-made, unmotered raft and performing free shows in river towns from St. Louis to New Orleans.

This is the second annual tour down the Mississippi, sponsored again by a grant from National Endowment for the Arts, a federal agency.

This year's revue, aimed at entertaining both children and adults, will portray a delightful tale of the trials and tribulations of a band of traveling entertainers, complete with music, magic, comedy acts, juggling, zany antics, pantomime and many surprises.

The revue is vaudeville, circus and carnival rolled into one, and at the world's most popular price, absolutely free.

Otrabanda will stop and perform in 30 towns and prisons along the river this summer, arriving in New Orleans for a final show on Aug. 21. Other stops scheduled in this area include Tiptonville, Tenn., on July 6 and Caruthersville on July 8.

During the winter months, the actors perform original plays, as well as the "River Raft Revue", throughout the United States. The company intends to return down the river each summer with an all- new show, and in 1976 plans to travel and perform on its own Mississippi River showboat.

Young Kennedy suffers cancer side-effects

WASHINGTON (AP) — Edward M. Kennedy Jr. is hospitalized in Ireland with side-effects of treatment for cancer, his father's office announced Friday.

A spokesman for Sen. Edward M. Kennedy said the son, 12, is suffering a mild reaction traceable to treatments designed to prevent a recurrence of bone cancer. The cancer resulted in amputation of a leg last Nov. 17.

The son is vacationing in Ireland with a group of schoolmates.

Rural gas sale date may be moved ahead

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency proposed Friday to require sale of unleaded gasoline at rural service stations by Oct. 1 of this year, three months earlier than previously proposed.

All service stations selling more than 200,000 gallons of gasoline a year must have provided unleaded gasoline by today.

EPA originally proposed that the requirement take effect for these rural stations on Jan. 1, 1975, because it believed that much time would be needed to obtain the special nozzle spouts needed for lead-free gasoline pumps.

In proposing to move up the requirement to Oct. 1, the EPA said "the nozzle spout shortage may have been overestimated" and it appears possible for the rural stations to comply with the shorter deadline.

EPA invited written comments within 30 days.

DO YOU KNOW THE ANATOMY OF THE EAR?

By

Are you familiar with the anatomy of the ear? There are many parts and each has a specific function.

First there is the external ear. It is the prominent appendage on each side of the head. It is composed largely of elastic cartilage.

Next comes the middle ear. This includes the eardrum, the hammer, anvil, and stirrup. Then comes the inner ear. The inner ear has been described as the best protected organ in the human system. It consists of two bodies; the osseous labyrinth and the membranous labyrinth.

Other parts are the cochlea, the round window, and the Eustachian tube. Also, the mastoid cells, the external canal and the auricle.

Cerumen, commonly called ear-wax, is a normal excretion from glands in the ear canal.

Today in U.S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Monday, July 1, the 182nd day of 1974. There are 183 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1867, the Dominion of Canada was created by the British North America Act.

On this date:

In 1862, the U.S. Congress established the Bureau of Internal Revenue.

In 1863, the Civil War Battle of Gettysburg began.

In 1881, the American Red Cross was incorporated, with Clara Barton as president.

In 1898, Theodore Roosevelt and his Rough Riders carried out a victorious assault on San Juan hill in Cuba in the Spanish-American war.

In 1958, construction of the St. Lawrence Seaway was completed.

In 1966, the Medicare health program for elderly Americans went into effect.

Ten years ago: Orchestra conductor Pierre Monteux died at his Hancock, Maine, home at age 89.

Five years ago: Britain's Prince Charles was invested as Prince of Wales at Caernarvon Castle.

One year ago: An Israeli military attache, Colonel Yosef Alon, was shot to death in the driveway of his home in a Washington suburb.

Today's birthdays: Actress Leslie Caron is 43. Actor James Cagney is 70.

Thought for today: We are never deceived. We deceive ourselves —Goethe, German poet, 1749-1832.

Bond, legislators disagree on Mo. economic status

JEFFERSON CITY — Democratic leaders are critical of Gov. Christopher S. Bond's recent prediction that the state will face "a significant cash problem" this fall. They say these are "scare tactics" designed to keep the legislature from over-riding his appropriation vetoes.

A Bond administration spokesman, William J. Raftery, director of the accounting division of the Missouri Office of Administration, said September should be the most difficult month. "We expect to be able to pay all salaries," Raftery said. "But we are going to ask state agencies to voluntarily defer their discretionary expenditures."

Raftery said general revenue reserves will fall from $99 million in late June to approximately $10 million in September. This decrease is largely due to cash- flow problems which have long troubled the state government.

The difficulty arises because Missouri collects most of its revenue between January and June through personal income taxes and holiday sales tax receipts. Income is greater than expenditures, which are low during this period. This situation is responsible for the nearly $100 million surplus the state now has.

However, a high proportion of state expenditures is made between July and December when state earnings are lowest. The surplus which was accumulated in the first half of the year is reduced by large cash transfers such as a $48 million dispersal to public schools on Sept. 15. Also state agencies make many large purchases when the new fiscal year begins in July because they have new appropriations.

Adding to the problem this year are two major outlays which, Raftery said, will drop the cash reserves below the $30 million which state planners hoped to maintain as a "conservative minimum" to cover emergencies.

They are:

-- $20 million in unpredicted state income tax refunds, including payments to the elderly under new legislation.

-- $21 million which the Missouri Supreme Court ordered transferred from general revenue funds to the State Highway Commission in a 1973 decision.

Responding to Raftery's predictions, Sen. William J. Cason (D-Clinton), said, "Missouri is absolutely not headed for any financial difficulties in September which we don't expect."

"It's not unusual for us to come up short when school foundation money comes due in September," Cason said. "We sometimes have to defer part of the payments to the schools because of cash - flow problems in state finance."

Cason described the administration's forecasts as "scare tactics" to keep the legislature from over-riding the government's appropriations vetoes such as higher education, judge's pay increase and aid to school children.

"The letters are starting to come in from the little people in the state who will be affected by these cutbacks and the administration is trying to explain these vetoes to them," Cason said. "I think there are 23 votes in the Senate right now to over-ride the veto on higher education."

Cason, the Senate's president pro tem, said present expenditures are in line with revenues. "I personally selected fiscal conservatives for the appropriations committee, and they think we have enough money to pay for the programs the governor wants to cut back," he said.

"There will be no tax increase in Missouri during the next two years," Cason emphasized.

Rep. Harold L. Volkmer (D-Hannibal) also disagrees with the Bond administration's evaluation of the state financial picture.

"He's trying to use this to stop any appropriations vetoes from being over-ridden," Volkmer said.

Volkmer said a principal issue over which he disagreed with the governor is the $21 million transfer from general revenue to the State Highway Commission. This payment is a major factor in the governor's pessimism, Volkmer said, but it hasn't been determined that the transfer must be made in one large payment which would reduce the cash reserves to a critical level.

Since no definite date for the transfer has been set, Volkmer said, an agreement should be sought which would allow several small monthly payments.

A court case to determine the amount of the transfer is pending in the Cole County Circuit Court.

Bruce Ring, State Highway Commission general counsel, said, "As far as I know the rate of transfer of the funds is completely negotiable." No final accounting has been made, he said, but the court will decide the rate of transfer only if "we can't negotiate an agreement".

Record interest earned by state

JEFFERSON CITY — State Treasurer James I. Spainhower has announced a record amount of interest earned by Missouri in one fiscal year.

Figures released today by Spainhower show that the state will earn more than $22.4 million of interest in the fiscal year which ends midnight Sunday. That is more than double the amount earned last year and is about $10 million more than the $12.4 million earned in 1968-69, which had been the most productive year previously on record.

In announcing the interest figures today, Spainhower said, "Innovative investment policies of the treasurer's office have been combined with higher interest rates and greater income by Missouri's government to generate a substantial increase in the amount of return the people now receive on their tax dollars."

Commenting on the importance of earned interest to the financial condition of the state, Spainhower says the interest income on investments this year will be enough, for example, to pay for the entire operation of the Department of Corrections with sufficient funds remaining to meet the combined operating expenses of the offices of governor, Lt. governor, secretary of state, auditor and treasurer.

The $22.4 million Missouri earned in interest comes from the investment of approximately $725 million for varying lengths of time throughout the year. Spainhower says the average amount on deposit in interest-bearing accounts is about $300 to 350 million at any one time. Interest rates on investments varied from a low of 5.5 per cent in July to a high of 8.9 per cent in September.

Segments of our society are being separated by the language they create, says Philip Lesly in "The People Factor: Managing the Human Climate." Lesly says that specialization sometimes requires special terminology. But there is an added factor -- snobbery. People want to make sure others recognize they are on a different level. So they deliberately develop jargon that sets them apart.

Airport replica displayed

50 years ago
July 1, 1924

Jack Marshall and family of Springfield, Ill., moved to Sikeston this week.

Work on the handsome home of Alf Carr of Park Place is well underway. It is of brick veneer, modern, with basement under the entire building.

Just out-- new Victor records for dancing: "Pale Moon" by Paul Whitman and his orchestra; "Fox Trot Classique" by Jean Goldkette and his orchestra; and "Spain" and "Mr. Radio Man" by Paul Whitman; and "Big Boy" and "Savannah" by Ted Weems and his orchestra. Derris, The Druggist.

Mrs. Kenneth Sear of Columbia is the guest of Miss Margaret Harris.

July 1, 1934

A completely executed replica of the Sikeston municipal airport as it will appear during the dedication celebration Tuesday and Wednesday, has been put in the large middle display window of Woolworth's store on Front street. The scene, arranged chiefly through the efforts of Z. E. McAmis, the store manager, and Harry Young, was constructed Thursday.

Salcedo -- Miss Elza Tate and Miss Bida Patterson shopped in Sikeston Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Essmueller, Arthur Essmueller and Dr. Harry Essenhoff of St. Louis came down last Saturday to visit with Gust Zacher and family. Sunday, Mr. Zacher and family and guests spent the day at Big Springs.

Tuesday, Dr. and Mrs. H. K. Kready, Miss Kathryn Clark and Mrs. Lyman Mitchell drove to Arcadia and attended the Methodist assembly. Others from Sikeston there that day to attend the assembly were: The Rev. E. H. Orear, Cecil Ree, Mrs. J. N. Ross, Mrs. J. W. Baker, sr., Mrs. Grover Baker, Mrs. Margaret Harper, and Miss Florence Baker.

Harry C. Young, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Young, sr., of Sikeston, has been promoted to the rank of major in the Army Air Forces.

T. E. Stallings, for the past five years principal of the local high school, was named superintendent of schools at a meeting of the school board late Thursday to replace R. A. Harper, who resigned June 30 to take a new position in Maryville, Tenn.

Lt. Charles Allen Cook, son of Mrs. O. T. Elder, 737 North Ranney, was wounded in action on June 30, the War Department notified his wife, Friday in Kansas City.

Mrs. G. W. Alexander, the former Miss Ada Angel, sister of Mrs. G. W. H. Presnell, wife of Mayor Presnell, died at her home near Tiptonville, Tenn., Thursday, three hours after suffering a cerebral hemorrhage.

Mr. and Mrs. Grady Frank of Oran are parents of a son born Wednesday at the Delta Community Hospital.

A daughter was born Wednesday to Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Horton of New Madrid.

Charleston — Charles R. Trickey, 87, a well- known business and civic leader in Charleston, died Thursday at Barnes Hospital, St. Louis, where he had been a surgical patient.

East Prairie — Funeral services for Benjamin Franklin Tanner, 72, a retired farmer who lived nearly all his life in and around East Prairie, will be Saturday. He died at his home Wednesdy following a heart attack.

William P. Clayton, 90-year- old pioneer citizen of Scott county, died at the home of his daughter and son- in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Vaughn, Ruth and Malcolm streets, Thursday and with his death goes one of the few remaining links between the present and those days of half a century ago when dense forests stretched for miles on every side and automobiles and radios were unheard of.

Rebel Daughter Troubles Dad

The tense relationship between suspiciously successful businessman Gustavus Gordon and his headstrong teenage daughter Elsa sets the scene for a new MARY WORTH episode starting Monday.

A widower, Gordon has tried to raise Elsa without the loving guidance of a mother, and now he finds her unruly and unladylike.

Gordon searches for a way to penetrate the wall separating he and his disrespectful daughter. Does Mary Worth have the answer?

New story starts Monday, July 8.

She sells sea safety

Saucy Sunken Gardens "swabby" Karen Smallwood is a see- worthy reminder to the nation's 47 million boaters that June 30 marked the beginning of Safe Boating Week. The Coast Guard agrees that although the St. Petersburg, Fla., coed is a delectable deckhand, she is not mandatory shipboard equipment.

What's the law?

The case of the nervy son

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Jake owned and operated a plumbing business for over 30 leaky years when he decided to call it quits and hang up his trusty wrench. When he did so, his ambitious won Roger, who had worked with him the last couple of years, opened his own plumbing business and obtained his father's old number.

Retirement, as it developed, quickly proved less fun to Jake than a clogged sewer pipe. And, electing to go back into business, he asked the telephone company for the return of the telephone number he had used for 30 years.

"He can't have it back," protested Jake's son. "He gave it up. I've got it now."

"He's got nothing," was Jake's answer, "except a lot of nerve. Over a number of years, I built that number into a valuable business asset. Normally, a child doesn't inherit from his parents until they're dead. And, there's no tombstone over me yet."

The dispute ended up in court!

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you take the number away from Jake's nervy son and give it back to Jake?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that considering the fact that Jake had spent 30 years in establishing the telephone number as a valuable business asset in connection with his business, as against his son, it was more equitable to give it back to him dispite his short retirement. All's fair in love and business, concluded the judge in effect, but not as between a father and son under the facts of the case.

Meat price spiral has producers and consumers beefing

Associated Press Writer

Food prices: Everybody has a gripe.

From the livestock producer who's losing money; to the supermarket operator whose costs are up; to the consumer struggling to stretch the family budget.

The situation they face is full of confusion and contradiction:

—The farmer is getting less money for his cattle, but the consumer is paying almost as much for meat as he did last year.

—The livestock producers who raise the calves and fatten the cattle for market and the middlemen who slaughter the steer and sell the meat to you are faced with higher costs. Some are losing money. Even those doing better than last year say profits are lower than they were five years ago.

—The administration is encouraging people to buy meat and has promised to buy $100 million of beef and pork to help boost the farmer's income.

—Looking ahead, the government hopes large grain crops this year will cut the price of feed grains, making meat cheaper to produce. But even if this happens, nobody knows how much of that saving would be passed on to you at the retail meat counter. The question is whether inflation of other items can be controlled.

Normally, farm, wholesale and retail prices go up and down together. It isn't working that way with meat. Why not?

To understand what's happening to your meat budget now, you have to go back to early 1973.

A little more than a year ago, farmers were getting high prices for their cattle. Consumers, paying an average of $1.36 a pound for meat, got angry and organized a weeklong meat boycott.

The government, meanwhile, put ceilings on what packers could charge supermarkets and what supermarkets could charge you for beef, lamb and pork. Farmers, however, were allowed to charge more money for their livestock. The bottom was allowed to go up, but the top and the middle stayed put.

The packers and retailers rebelled, refusing to pay more because they couldn't charge you more. Farmers held on to their animals, creating an oversupply on the farm. When controls came off last September, farmers sent all the cattle to market, there was a greater supply than demand and farmers got less money than they expected.

The backlog is still there. It got even bigger in December and February because of truckers strikes that kept meat from the market. Farmers are still getting less money than they did one year ago, but retail prices, until recently at least, were at or near 1973 levels.

Where is your meat dollar going? Here is a government breakdown in cents:

	Apr 72	Apr 73	Apr 74
Retailer	31.0	26.7	30.6
Packer	6.3	6.2	7.4
Farmer	62.7	67.1	62.0

Another set of government figures shows that the farmer got about 8 cents less for a pound of beef this May than he did in April, 1973. The retail price was down only one penny—from $1.36 a pound to $1.35. Why?

Industry sources, who don't like to talk for attribution about this sensitive subject, give this explanation:

Suppose you are a retailer who buys a product for $1 and resells it for $2. Of the dollar markup, 80 cents goes for costs of running your store; 20 cents is profit.

Now, suppose the amount you pay for the product goes down to 50 cents. At the same time, however, your other costs go up to 90 cents. That's $1.40. Add your 20 cents profit and you have a $1.60 selling price.

The wholesale price has dropped 50 cents, the retail price only 40 cens. That's what's happening to meat prices right now.

The American Meat Institute, which represents the packers, broke down what happens to the 7.4 cents the packer gets of your meat dollar:

Wages and salaries 3.7 cents
Rent, depreciation and interest 1.5 cents
Supplies and containers 1.0 cents
All other expenses 1.6 cents
Profit .3 cents

The institute said it could not provide comparable figures for 1973. But a spokesman said wages alone had risen 12 per cent in the past year—from an average of $7.41 an hour last year to $8.29 this year for salaries and fringe benefits.

Elias Paul, president of John Morrell Co., one of the largest packers, said that until this year the industry had been averaging a profit of between- nine-tenths of a cent and 1.2 cents for every dollar of sales. This year, he said, earnings were less.

The National Association of Food Chains, representing retailers, said labor costs account for 65 per cent of the supermarket's share of the dollar. The rest goes to utilities, rent, depreciation, taxes, maintenance and repair, promotion and insurance.

Clarence Adamy, president of the association, offered a breakdown of the percentage of nonlabor cost increases from 1973 to 1974:

Hauling meat to store 17.0
Refrigeration cases 25.7
Meat coolers 10.5
Meat saws 15.7
Packaging 25.0
Utility rates 10.0 to 60.0

Industry profits are expected to rise 50 per cent this year, the association said. A spokesman said that in dollars and cents, this means the store will make three-fourths of a cent for every dollar in sales, instead of one-half cent. And a spokesman said that in 1968 and 1969, the retailer made about a penny for each dollar in sales.

In response to complaints by livestock producers—ranchers who raise the calves and feedlot operators who fatten them for market—the government has launched investigations of whether the spread between the price the farmer gets and the price the consumer pays is too large.

The consumer contributed to keeping meat prices high by eating more beef than ever before.

Eagleton tells Democrats inflation can be stopped

"Reduction of federal spending and a relaxation of the Federal Reserve Board's tight money are two means of fighting rampant inflation," Sen. Thomas Eagleton told about 300 Young Democrats Saturday night during the closing banquet of the Missouri Young Democrats state convention at the Ramada Inn.

Eagleton, who is currently seeking re-election to the U.S. Senate, said he voted against a tax cut proposal offered last week in the Senate by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., because the proposal would have provided the average family only 85 cents a week in tax cuts while it would have fueled inflation by increasing the federal debt by several billion dollars.

"Congress should develop some means of relieving the temporary dislocation caused by unemployment and high rates of inflation," he remarked, adding that to the five million workers who are out of a job, this is a very real problem.

Eagleton said public employment is only a partial answer, but that unemployment compensation improvements would also help. "The executive branch, if it were willing and able, could move to pump more funds into the home mortgage market ... We could also improve the Food Stamp Program and accelerate plans to cushion this country from wide fluctuations in world commodity supplies," Eagleton said.

Eagleton said Congress should step forward and stop dreaming about fat, non-inflationary tax cuts that do not exist and exercise some guidance. "We have begun by passing a comprehensive budget reform measure, but more is needed," he remarked.

Eagleton said he had recently voted to put a $295 billion ceiling on federal expenditures — more than $9 billion below President Richard Nixon's proposed budget. He added that he also voted for an amendment to lower the national debt ceiling by $5 billion.

Eagleton said the President reported in his 1973 State of the Union address that economic prospects were very bright and there was a chance to reduce the overall inflation rate to two and a half per cent by the end of 1973. "The fact is that by the end of 1973 it was 10.1 per cent," Eagleton said.

"In the February 1974 economic report by the President, the prediction was made that inflation for the year would average seven per cent. Since the report, inflation has been running well over 12 per cent," Eagleton noted.

The President said that by the end of May the inflation rate would not reach seven per cent for the year, but that we would only come down to that rate by the fourth quarter, Eagleton reported. "That implies an inflation rate for the year of about 10 per cent," he commented.

Eagleton said there are two courses of action that can be followed to keep inflation from becoming a severe hardship for some people. "The first is the optimistic - high risk plan, and that is a tax cut," Eagleton said. He added that although he had opposed the recent tax cut proposals, he would have to consider cutting taxes for the low and middle- income citizens who have been hurt the most by inflation.

"The second possibility, and the one I favor, is referred to as the pessimistic - low risk plan," Eagleton said. According to Eagleton, federal spending could be cut, thereby reducing the budget deficit.

"The Federal Reserve Board is holding the growth of money supply to a snail's

Telephone rate hike is sought

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Residential telephone bills will increase 15 per cent and the cost of pay phones will double if Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. receives a rate hike it will formally request this week.

The telephone company plans to file a rate increase request totaling $52.3 million per year Tuesday with the Missouri Public Service Commission in Jefferson City.

R.R. Shockley, vice president of Missouri-Illinois operations, said Saturday that the company needed a better rate of return on its investments to ensure continued growth and to maintain service. The minimum acceptable rate, he said, is 9.3 per cent.

Major causes for the request, said Shockley, are rising inflation and increased costs of materials, gasoline, vehicles, buildings, equipment and labor.

Under the proposal, the cost of single-party residential service would increase from $7.85 to $9 monthly, while the cost of pay phone use would jump from 10 cents to 20 cents. The last increase in pay phone cost came in 1952, when it rose from a nickel to a dime.

In addition, charges for a party line with 40 free calls would increase from $3.55 to $3.90 monthly and the costs of most other services, including installation charges, new phones, toll calls and long distance calls, would also be raised.

If the new rate schedule is improved, Southwestern Bell would receive about $49.1 million more from customers yearly, with the remainder of the increase absorbed by gross receipt taxes.

After federal, state and other local taxes, the phone company would net only $24.8 million, Shockley said.

The rate hike proposal follows a report released in February by Southwestern Bell showing record profits of $330,842,000 for 1973.

Southwestern Bell operates in Missouri, Arkansas, Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas and a small part of Illinois near St. Louis.

Authorities probe death of hit-and-run victim

The highway patrol and New Madrid County Sheriff's Department are continuing an investigation into the death of a 29- year - old woman who was struck and killed about 1:45 a.m. Sunday by a hit - and - run driver. Four other area traffic accidents over the weekend resulted in injuries to five persons, the highway patrol reported.

The woman, who was known by three different names, Deloris Davis, Deloris Duggins and Deloris Vogt, lived in a mobile home in St. Jude Big Oak Trailer Park just east of Highway 61 at the Highway 62 junction where the accident occurred.

She reportedly was lying across the southbound lane of Highway 61 when a car, traveling at a high rate of speed, struck her and did not stop.

According to a sheriff's deputy, the victim had been seen in Lilbourn at a tavern earlier Saturday between 8:30 and 9 p.m. until the tavern closed at 11 p.m.

She had been released Friday from custody of the sheriff's department when she was allowed to post her own $5,000 bond on a charge of felonious assault with intent to kill.

Price reductions create 'milk war'

A major reduction in retail milk prices was apparent today in many local grocery stores. The drop, totaling as much as 26 cents a gallon, follows a wholesale price reduction of four cents a gallon in at least one local dairy.

A spokesman for Liberty Super Market said milk under their private label is selling for $1.43 a gallon. That price, effective today is 26 cents less than last week-end's price.

Sikeston IGA Foodliner is also selling their store - labeled milk for $1.43 a gallon. One employe said the price reductions are creating "a milk war."

"According to state law, retailers can not make less than eight per cent mark up on milk prices, but we will follow the reductions to say in competition," the employe said.

Personnel at Barkett's Big Star said they planned to reduce their milk prices today but would not reveal any figures.

Ed Ring, owner of Bootheel Dairy, said Friday his orders to reduce wholesale milk prices by four cents a gallon came from his central office in St. Louis.

"The reductions are probably due to increases in the amount of milk reaching the market. I'm sure it has nothing to do with Watergate or the milk fund," Ring said.

Scott countians elected to 2 state Young Democrat posts

Miss Marca Sipes of Chaffee was elected national committeewoman and G. David Bird, 928 N. Ranney St., was elected treasurer of the Missouri Young Democrats during its annual state convention held Friday and Saturday at the Ramada Inn.

Other officers elected were Wayne Graham of Raytown, President; Stanley Brown of Clinton, executive vice president; Janice McMillen of Jefferson City, Administrative vice president; Debbie Barber of Columbia, recording secretary; Bob Levine of St. Louis, corresponding secretary; and Jim Schrewsbury of St. Louis, sergeant at arms.

Bill Lochman of Independence, region six director, and Joe Service of Kansas City, national committeeman were re-elected to office.

Officers were elected by more than 300 delegates who registered for the weekend event hosted by the Scott and New Madrid county Young Democrats Clubs.

R. Michael Hobbs of St. Louis, outgoing president of the Missouri Young Democrats, stated that the 1974 convention was called for three basic reasons.

The first reason was to express the desire of the state Young Democrats to aid all Democratic office seekers and holders, he said. Other reasons were to elect new state officers and formulate policies for those officers to follow, he added.

The chief proposal backed by the Missouri Young Democrats is to see that minority quotas are met in selecting representatives to the 1976 Democratic National Convention.

"We want proportional representation and we want quota establishments for minority groups such as blacks and youths and for majority groups such as women," Hobbs remarked.

"We want to make sure that all segments of the party are represented at all levels," he commented.

Council to discuss liquor codes

The City Council will meet at 7:30 p.m. today at the City Administrative Building.

The agenda will include discussion of an ordinance amending Sikeston liquor- by- the- drink codes to comply with state law.

Acting City Manager Bill Whitlock will report to the council on the possibility of obtaining government financing to build a joint school- city indoor swimming pool.

The council will consider a request to close the Maude Street crossing of the Frisco Railroad tracks in order to open the Wakefield Street crossing; a request for the abandonment of Frisco Street from Ruth to Kendall streets, Kendall from South Handy to Frisco and Gladys from South Handy to Frisco Street; and a request from property owners to change the name of Linda Drive to Windsor Drive.

Anti-burning ordinance enforced

The city will begin enforcing its anti- burning ordinance today, according to Acting City Manager Bill Whitlock.

The city ordinance bans all open burning exept by approval of the fire department.

Sikeston has had the code on the books for years, but it previously has not been enforced. The City Council said it wanted the ordinance enforced during a special meeting on June 17.

The ordinance defines open burning as any fire where the smoke is not emitted through a "smoke stack, chimney or other vent flue or structure."

Firemen called to medical group

Firemen were called at 10:20 a.m. today to the Ferguson Medical Group clinic, 1012 N. Main St., when some paper caught fire in a trash can and sent smoke through the building. Firemen said there was no damage and the fire was out by the time the fire truck arrived.

A DAY FOR SELF-RENEWAL

Wel all know (or do we?) that the Fourth of July is really the wrong day to be celebrating American independence. The resolution first was passed by the Continental Congress on July 2, 1776, and given its final vote of approval on July 19.

The flag we salute with pride today also has a confusing history, having had as few as nine stripes and as many as 18. The Star- Spangled Banner which inspired Francis Scott Key in 1814 had 15 stripes.

And historians now tell us the story of the Liberty Bell pealing the news of the signing of the Declaration of Independence in Philadelphia is a legend without foundation.

Does it matter so much? Early Americans, elated by freedom from foreign oppression, swaggering with the heady wine of indpendence and deeply aware that they were carving a new nation with the new laws, needed symbols to revere.

If there ever were any questions about the Fourth of July being the proper day for the national birthday, they were laid to rest with Thomas Jefferson and John Adams — both of whom died on July 4, 1826.

In Congress, William Wirt of the House of Representatives rose to seal the date: "Hiterto, fellow citizens, the Fourth of July has been celebrated among us, only as the anniversary of our independence, and its votaries had been merely human beings. But at its last recurrence — the great Jubilee of the nation — the anniversary, it may well be termed, of the liberty of man — heaven, itself, mingled visibly in the celebration, and hallowed the day anew by a double apotheosis."

Such wordy phrases remind us now that over the decades the Fourth of July probably has done as much to cheapen the art of oratory as any other single event. Until the middle of the 20th Century, no July 4 picnic was complete without recollections reaching back to the arrival of the Mayflower.

Times have changed the oratorical style, but rhetoric remains. The American experience has grown beyond the raw newness of a country whose people were still trying on the idea of liberty for size. But today's United States citizens know that independence is still a learning process which must be relived generation by generation. So it is necessary to have symbols — the Fourth, the flag, the bell — to remind us that we have a national purpose — what Jefferson termed "the free right to the unbounded exercise of reason and freedom of opinion."

We know that imperfection abounds among us, but we also know that from our time of national birth nothing has been stronger than the desire and the will to make this country work for the betterment of man.

Independence — whether expressed in the pages of history or lived in the world of today — is no legend. It is the celebration of nationhood which makes it self-renewing.

Next Thursday is what should be the most patriotic day of the year. We feel sorry for those misguided men, we question if they should be called men, who ran away from the draft or from battle and settled in foreign countries. In our childhood we looked upon July 4 with little more thought than a day to shoot fireworks. We saved our pennies, nickels and dimes to buy maybe fifty cents worth of firecrackers. And we got up before daylight to start shooting them. We still have a scar in the palm of our right hand where a firecracker exploded prematurely. Grabbing the wrist with our left hand we ran for the doctor, fearing to look at the hand as we were scared it has been blown off. Our schools taught us love for our country and we tried hard to go with the first group of the Monroe County draftees in August 1971, but was told we would go when our time came. Being way down the list, we went to Kansas City and enlisted. No prouder days in our life were there than when our two sons volunteered in World War II. We'll never vote for a presidential candidate who is willing to grant amnesty to our deserters.

THE BIAS OF NETWORK NEWS

In the past few years, the discussion of bias in television news almost inevitably degenerates into assertions about the personal bias or the personal fairness of news commentators. The assumption is always that bias is a personal attribute of newsmen, and the slanting of news in one direction or another can be annalyzed by adding up the personal biases of the newsmen as if one were adding up the number of black and white marbles in a collection.

Reducing the issue of bias to a simple question about the fairness of individual newsmen not only leads to dead -end discussions, but it also tends to obscure a much more serious form of bias -- the bias of the news organization itself.

Just as a roulette wheel which is mounted on a tilted table would tend to favor some numbers over others, no matter how impartial the croupier might be, a television network which is "tilted" in any consistent direction because of the way it is organized will tend to favor certain types of stories over others -- no matter how fair the newscaster might be.

One of the main sub-surface features of the national news which comes from the network is that it is filtered through and controlled by a group of producers and editors located in New York City. This is especially true of the three evening newscasts -- the CBS Evening News with Walter Cronkite, the NBC Nightly News with John Chancellor, and the ABC Reasoner- Smith Report -- which have combined audience of more than 50 million viewers. The events to be covered, the story line which will be followed, the correspondent, and the editing of the story are all tightly supervised from New York.

Dr. Edward J. Epstein's study also pointed out that not only are the vast preponderence of stories about America centrally selected and edited in New York, but most of the news footage used to illustrate them are drawn from four metropolitan centers -- New York, Washington, D. C., Chicago and Los Angeles. More than 80 per cent of the networks' domestic camera- crews and correspondents are stationed in these four cities. Moreover, permanent hook-ups maintained in these cities so that film stories can be electronically "fed" to the broadcast center in New York; and, with the exception of Los Angeles, no charge is made against the program's budget for transmitting stories from these cities. In the case of most other cities, special microwave channels have to be leased from A.T.&T. to transmit stories, and this usually involves a heavy expense for the program's budget.

In other words, network news is set up in such a way that stories from a few cities are much more convenient and less expensive than stories from the rest of America.

This does not mean, however, that network news crews do not venture out into the hinterland when the occasion demands it: in the case of a major happening, such as the uprising at Wounded Knee, S.D., crews and correspondents will be dispatched despite the expense. But on more routine coverage - and especially on more general stories about trends rather than events -- the path of least resistance is followed and assignments are given to the crews which are most conveniently located from the networks' point of view.

The results is that "national" stories about urban violence, civil rights, anti-war protests, ecology, meat boycotts, Watergate, and inflation tend to be depicted in terms of the special problems of four unique cities. Paradoxically, the concentration of media coverage in these four cities has tended to make them logical stages for demonstrations and confrontations seeking a certain form of national attention, and thus has further reduced the value of the dramatic footage obtained from these cities -- at least for the purpose of being representative of national trends and moods.

JEFFERSON CITY — A plea for drivers to show extra alertness, courtesy and patience over the July 4 holiday has been issued by Col. Sam S. Smith, superintendent of the Missouri State Highway Patrol.

"The driver who expects a safe trip over the Fourth of July holiday will have to be alert, show courtesy at all times and be patient under all circumstances," Smith declared. "I urge all drivers to follow these safe driving practices as they travel."

The patrol superintendent noted that 11 persons died in Missouri traffic mishaps over the July 4 holiday period last year. Eight people lost their lives in accidents investigated by the highway patrol and three people were killed in urban traffic. He also pointed out that over the past five years, 102 people have been killed in Missouri traffic accidents over this holiday period, an average of 20 a year.

"An important thing to remember as you drive over this holiday period, or any time, is that it only takes a small mistake to become involved in an accident," Smith continued, "A moment of inattention, failing to yield the right of way, or driving too fast for conditions are all errors that can lead to accidents."

The offical traffic death count for the July 4 holiday period will begin at 6 p.m. Wednesday and go through midnight, Thursday (30 hours).

THE MOMENTUM
OF IMPEACHMENT

The question is no longer "What did the President know and when did he know it" but whether the sheer momentum of the ponderous impeachment process may not now have passed the point of no return.

If so, even the significant statement by Sen. Sam Ervin in Cleveland the other day that testimony before his Watergate investigating committee "indicated to me the President had not committed an impeachable offense" may have no effect.

Even President Nixon's complete and unqualified cooperation with the House Judiciary Committee's impeachment inquiry, a co operation he is steadily being forced into despite counterattacks from the White House, may be too late to stem the tide.

Not only have too many things been set in motion, not only has popular confidence in the President eroded to about the lowest point possible, but the very idea of impeachment has been talked up and down across the nation for so many months that it is no longer as scary and unthinkable as it onces was. Indeed, it more and more appears that both for the President's sake as well as the country's, a formal, full-scale impeachment hearing may be the only way to settle this issue once and for all.

It is not just Watergate that the President cannot shake off his back. Other matters are contributing to the deterioration of his position.

Inflation, particulary in the basic necessity of food and fuel along with shortages are rightly or wrongly being laid at the door of the White House. People are fed up with a seemingly endless stream of crises and bad news, and while the responsibility for this scarcely constitutes an empeachable offense on the part of the President, it is this souring mood of the public which, more than anything else, will bring the nation to the brink of impeachment.

One other thing could provide the final push over the edge. That is the dark hint by Rep. Wilbur Mill, D-Ark. that when the findings of the joint congressional inquiry into President Nixon's finances are revealed they will be more damaging to him even than Watergate.

So great may be the disgust of Americns that even if the President is cleared of any deliberate fraud on his income tax returns, the demands for his impeachment or resignation may become irresistible.

It will all have begun with Watergate, but in the end, Watergate will have been only one of the factors making the year 1974 one of the most traumatic in the nation's history.

SOVIETS TRY
TRACTOR "INVASION"

Communist Russia now looks to invade the world farm machinery market, starting with tractors from Minsk. Tractors from Minsk are not a burlesque joke. They are a threat to the U.S. balance of payments and the stability of our farm machinery industry. The reason is not that communist tractors are better than capitalist tractors. They are not. The Reds can simply sell them at below market price, without regard to cost of production.

Soviet technological and production failures have put the Reds behind in their balance of payments with the U.S. Last year the payment gap amounted to a billion dollars, much of it caused by failures in Soviet agriculture. The Reds were forced to buy capitalist grains and even with subsidies and credits financed by U.S. taxpayers, Moscow was hard pressed to pay for it.

While they were eating our food, they turned more of their own production to military hardware and related items, including trucks and farm machinery. Soviet workers must labor where they are told and at wages set by the Red dictators. U.S. industry can compete and produce better farm machinery than Red models copied from U.S. designs. U.S. labor cannot compete iwth Soviet slave labor. Our good workers should not have to compete with slave labor of communist countries. HLH

Goodby to the Hook: No-Crisis Pact Guarantees Longshoremen $16,000 a Year -- Work or No Work

NEW YORK -- It's a long way from Tipperary for the bouncy bantam Teddy Gleason, the longshoremen's chief. It's a long way from the days his people settled here in a cold- water flat and he had to run down five shaky flights to get to the outhouse. And from Coney Island where he hawked hot dogs.

And it's a long way for his International Longshoremen's Association's 50,000 dockwallopers under their new master wage pact -- the details of which are just seeping out. It's a long way from the days of the hook, the hand truck and the angry Hollywood movies to the current agreement which will in two years guaranted a waterfront worker $16,000 a year whether he works or not. And under which he can make $35,000 to $40,00 a year.

And with Social Security a docker can retire after 25 years with a $9,000 to $12,000 a year pension (depending on his family status).

And there's the new $12 an hour overtime rate -- which can give a man $120 after a long night's work.

There's all this and more covered in a topside agreement with the tough- bargaining employers' council of North Atlantic Shipping Associations covering six big harbors. And soon to encompass all ports from Searsport, Maine, to Brownsville, Texas. It's a costly package for the shippers -- what with having paid longshoremen $44 million this past year in Guaranteed Annual Income.

But the big news in this settlement, hammered out last week in Miami, is in Teddy Gleason's new statesmanship -- a phrase which crunches him a bit but he wears proudly as once he did a new pair of shoes. This agreement was concluded 110 days in advance of the Sept. 30th contract expiration date. This is a first for the industry. It's been struck regularly like a Chinese gong since 1915. Then the dockers fought for a half- hour lunch period and grease for the hand trucks.

And there was the 1923 boycott of British ships "when the English were going to hang the Lord Mayor (McSweeney) of Cork for fighting for Irish freedom." He went on a hunger strike, died in prison and the stevedoring strikes swung to other issues -- mostly money. Billions of dollars worth of American trade has been lost or crippled in waterfront stoppages since 1946. In the last 25 years, the ILA has been the Taft- Hartley Law's best cooling- off customer, one government official said.

For some years now "Teddy" and his colleagues in other maritime unions have been conferring on efforts to counteract foreign competition from foreign shipowners paying low, sometimes slave, wages who could guarantee delivery while our piers were paralyzed. For two years now Gleason has been talking with Dave Cole of the American Arbitration Association's Labor- Management Committee, who doubled as Chairman of President Nixon's National Commission for Industrial Peace -- always seeking methods to end crisis bqrgaining which drove off foreign buyers of American products.

Dave Cole is a good councelor; he has advised many presidents. Gleason got off the wharf kick. Which is good. Few realize that a total strike called by Gleason and his colleagues could shut this nation up tighter than Ron Ziegler on an inoperative day.

"Main thing is," says Gleason, "I wanted to close out the cycle. We just didn't do this country any good with a strike every two to three years.

"I think this nation just isn't in shape for a strike. Things are too tough at home and internationally to have America's transportation system tied up. We would be hurting our world money exchange and the ability of our manufacturers to ship and compete abroad. The foreigners would out there killing our markets."

Gleason explained how easily "the foreigners" could sweep into the U.S. Today's container- carrying ships are mobile. They can go deep into Canada or to some Mexican port, unload the big metal "boxes," put them piggyback on trucks and move the foreign- made cheap labor goods to compete with our workers' products anywhere in the U.S. with the most "fantastic speed."

What do the American shipping and stevedore companies get for their new wage and fringe payouts? Well, automation and a promise of a full day's work and nobody ducking out on assignments in the harbor after a swift morning show at the hall to get credit for the Guaranteed Annual Income, which will be $13,000 the first year of the three- year pact, $14,500 the second year, and $16,000 in the final year. This system will be monitored.

And there will be swift loading of whole "barges." Thus in one swoop 400 to 500 tons can be loaded in a few minutes aboard what are called LASH (Lighter Aboard Ship) and LASH Seabees.

The shippers are groaning but content. Rarely in peacetime has there been such a heavy flow of oceangoing trade. A long strike now would have crippled the economy. So, as in the newspaper printing field, management is paying heavily for automation and attrition of manpower which eventually will thin the longshoremen ranks as the dockwallopers retire. It is hoped it will pay off for all sides -- no strikes and a full day's (automated) work for a very full day 's pay. On The Waterfront, it's a long way from the hand truck, the hook, the cruel shape- up and the legendary men of Tipperary.

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:
'Nofziger Jobs'

WASHINGTON — President Nixon has lived by the leak, just as he has been brought low by the leak.

In his attempt to control the flow of underground information from the White House, he has employed both plumbers and leakers.

Indeed, those presidential spokesmen, who have expressed such grand moral outrage over the House impeachment leaks, are some of the best leakers in the business.

We have made a careful study of presidential leaks, which are known in the backrooms of the White House as "Nofziger Jobs," after former presidential aide Lyn Nofziger who was a master of the leak.

Not long after taking over the White House in 1969, President Nixon himself fashioned his public relations strategy in a series of eight secret memos to his staff chief, H. R. Haldeman.

In a typical memo, dated Sept. 22, 1969, the President called his aides' tactics "inadequate" and "amateurish" and urged them to show more "bulldog" determination against people like Sen. Ted Kennedy, D-Mass.

As former aide Jeb Stuart Magruder has confided: "The most sophisticated student of public relations in the White House was ... the President himself."

The President's strategy included the adroit use of the leak. He favored staffmen Lynn Nofziger and Pat Buchanan, because of their excellent press contacts, to plant the stories the White House wanted sneaked out.

The President's favorite target was always Sen. Kennedy. In an attempt to link Kennedy with Hanoi, for example, the President instructed Haldeman: "Buchanan's prudent primary group might get a major mailing out to editors and columnists in Massachusetts and perhaps even nationally, just setting forth the Hanoi quote ... Buchanan also should be able to get a columnit or two -- and Nofziger could help in this respect -- to pick up this line."

Another time, Magruder planted an innocent picture of Kennedy and a beautiful woman, photographed on the streets of Rome, in a national scandal sheet. "It was later picked up by one of the news magazines," Magruder has confessed.

Former White House special investigator Jack Caulfield has also told senators behind closed doors how he tried to float out a false story that the Kennedy family foundation had financed a newspaper series criticizing presidential pal Bebe Rebozo.

Caulfield told the senators that he recommended "an oblique Nofziger, an immediate drop vis-a-vis the Kennedys ..."

The bewildered Senate Watergate staff, uninitiated in the backroom lingo of the White House, didn't understand. "What did that mean?" Caulfield was asked.

He explained painstakingly: "Well, what I meant was that consideration be given to have Lynn Nofziger speak with friends that he had in the media (about) whether or not the Newsday article was financed by the Kennedy Foundation."

Nofziger told us he did not leak the story. But someone did, since it was circulating around Washington at the time.

As another "Nofziger Job," Caulfield testified in secret that he was asked to run "a name- check with the FBI" on moviemaker Emile De Antonio, who produced an anti- Nixon movie called "Millhouse: A White Comedy."

Caulfield got the obliging FBI to give him a summary of De Antonio's file, including raw data. Afterward, Caulfield reported jubilantly to his superiors: "If (Democratic national chairman Larry) O'Brien is stupid enough to get behind (the film), we can, armed with the Bureau's information, do a Nofziger Job on De Antonio and O'Brien."

Again, a committee investigator wanted to know: "What do you mean ... a Nofziger Job?"

"What I mean," again recounted Caulfield, "is let him, Lyn Nofziger, whose talents in that area were much greater than anyone else around the White House ..., make that known to his contacts in the media."

This particular "Nofziger Job," however, was aborted -- possibly because the White House didn't want to advertise the movie even with unfavorable publicity.

At the same time that President Nixon made skillful use of leaks to smear his political foes, he went to elaborage, even illegal lengths to stop leaks about himself. He was a man haunted by dark secrets which he feared might leak out and drive him from public office.

So he formed the para-police plumbers unit, which was supposed to plug up unaughorized leaks. Another ex- White House leaker,

Charles Colson, has acknowledged in his courtroom confession that the plumbers broke into the offices of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist, however, not to plug a leak but to get dirt against Ellsberg to leak out.

Ironically, most of the White House horrors, which have by now effectively destroyed the presidency of Richard Nixon, were committed in reaction to press leaks in an attempt to stop them.

Footnote: In a future column we will describe more of the secret White House leaks.

Fireworks blamed for 3 fires

Firemen were called to four fires over the weekend, three of which were started by firecrackers.

At 9:05 p.m. Saturday, firemen were called to a grass fire at the VFW Stadium.

At 1:07 p.m. Sunday they were called to a grass fire near the Sikeston Regional Diagnostic Clinic on Plaza Drive. At 2:58 p.m. firemen were called to Matthews Elementary School on Pine Street, where firecrackers set fire to a log.

Firemen were called at 1:30 p.m. Saturday when a utility pole in the 500 block of South New Madrid Street was set afire by burning trash.

No damage was reported in any of the fires.

Voters to name collector

LILBOURN — Voters will ballot Tuesday in a special election to name a city collector and approve or disapprove a proposed electrical franchise agreement for a term of 20 years with Missouri Utilities Co. The proposed agreement could be terminated at the end of 10 years by option of the city.

Candidates for the collector position are Fredda Saltzman Hahne, Barbara Riley, Mary Helen Adams and Marveline Scott.

Polls will be open from 6 a.m. to 7 p.m. at the city hall for west ward voters and in the old school gymnasium in the east ward.

Barbara Eagleton is liberated woman

By JEANNE MAYNARD

Being the wife of a political figure is a demanding position, but Barbara Eagleton considers herself a liberated woman.

"I am not bound by my husband's rules or rules of the past. I am only bound by my own rules," Mrs. Eagleton said Saturday while visiting Sikeston with her husband, Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton.

Mrs. Eagleton said she is "all for" the Equal Rights Amendment. She has spoken before many groups in favor of the ERA which has not yet been ratified in Missouri.

"I am particularly interested in equal pay for women," she said.

The ERA failed in committee this year because many legislators tied it with the legalized abortion issue, according to Mrs. Eagleton.

"There are so many Catholic congressmen that received pressure from their districts, especially from St. Louis," she said of the abortion issue. Asked about her stand on legalized abortion Mrs. Eagleton answered, "I'm definitely against it ... I'm a Catholic, too," she added with a smile.

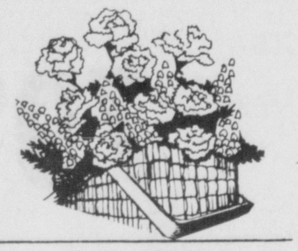
Mrs. Eagleton said her family is important to her and she tries to maintain a normal life even though they are constantly in the public's eye.

"The biggest changes were moving from St. Louis to Jefferson City and then to Washington, D. C. The lifestyle in Washington is certainly different, but we always considered the moves temporary," she said.

Barbara Eagleton

Barbara Eagleton admitted she enjoys the political life.

"One of the children may be interested in a political career, but I'm certainly not fostering it. We want our children to follow their own interests," she concluded.



D.R. Pratts mark 50th anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Pratt of Cape Girardeau celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary June 23 with a family dinner at Two Tony's Restaurant in Sikeston.

Mr. and Mrs. Pratt's children and their families attended the celebration. Mr. and Mrs. John Harvey Pratt and Geoffry and Pam of Columbia, were present along with Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Mueller and daughter Laurie of Belleville, Ill., and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Ludwig of Cape Girardeau.

Mr. and Mrs. Pratt were married June 25, 1924 in Connelsville, Pa.

Pratt, who is retired, was formerly employed by Hutson Furniture Co.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Stains, stains won't go away

By Polly Cramer

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — I cannot remove the stains from my steel storm windows. These probably were caused by the weather. I have tried using steel wool but that did not help.

My Pet Peeve is that the Comic section of our paper now uses print so small that I will have to get glasses to be able to read it. — WILMA.

DEAR POLLY — Lorene and those other "busy" women — Why should I make out my check for groceries at home? My purse might be stolen on the way there or I could lose the check and wind up buying someone else's groceries.

Most of the big markets have express lanes for those people in a hurry or only buying a few things. Most important I spend 40 or 50 minutes buying my weekly groceries with a total that adds up to quite a sum (at least a dollar a minute). I think this entitles me to spend a couple of minutes writing out a check at the counter and even taking the time to ask what the date is. Thanks for listening. — DARLENE.

DEAR POLLY — I have a suggestion for Lorene and others who are bugged in the supermarket lines while having to wait for someone to write a check. This whole procedure takes less than five minutes and is an indication of how rushed we have let ourselves become. To make the time pass more quickly smile and start a conversation with the next person in line (comment on her darling baby or ask about her brand of peanut butter) or spend that time turning all purchases so the cashier can quickly and easily read the prices. This is all an attitude. Life is so much more pleasant if we look on the cheery side of things. — JO ANN.

DEAR POLLY — When sewing I clip or pin the pattern instruction sheet on a curtain or wall just behind my sewing machine and at eye level. I merely look up and check on the next step or to find picture assistance while both hands are busy following instructions. I use these aids much more than I would if I had to hunt and then unfold the sheet.

I cut the top from a facial tissue box leaving about a 1/2-inch rim for strength, placed this on a cabinet shelf to hold all the various size of plastic lids for small bowls, cartons, freezer containers, etc. The size of each as they stand on edge helps me find the right one for a certain container. — MARIE A.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: My husband spends money like it was going out of style. He buys anything he wants, no matter what the cost. If it's another gun for $250, fine and dandy. A third camera for $150 is O.K., too. He thinks nothing of paying $40 for a pair of shoes. I won't tell you what his suits cost. You'd get sick.

His closets are jammed, yet he keeps buying, buying. This man makes $20,000 a year and he's no kid. He's 52 years old.

When I ask him why he continues this mindless buying, he says, "Because I never had anything when I was a kid and now I can have whatever I want."

We are always broke and the bills are stacked all over the place.

The doctor says that's why I have week- long headaches and high blood pressure. Do you think I can change him or should I just give up. We've been married five years. -- Busted In Illinois.

Dear Busted: You say he's no kid. Well, I have news for you. He IS a kid. Forget about changing him. No way.

Now that you have an opinion from your doctor, I suggest you get one from your lawyer. Your letter contains too many unanswered questions, such as -- do you work? Do you have money from a previous marriage? Do you get an allowance? This I can tell you; no man is worth week-long headaches and high blood pressure.

Dear Ann Landers: With all your contacts, surely you can find some help for us.

Our 16- year - old son is a problem. He refuses to admit it. He rejects all efforts to get him to a counselor. He says, "Everything is just fine."

Outside the home he is bright, outgoing, charming and downright attractive. The minute he walks through the door he's a different person -- sullen, disrespectful, uncooperative, selfish, inconsiderate, hateful and mean.

We have evidence that he is breaking the law. I won't go into detail but what he is doing could have serious repercussions. He considers the law regarding such activities stupid and refuses to listen when we tell him he could get into serious trouble.

This boy is making our lives a living hell. There is no peace of mind from day to day. He laughs when we warn him to keep within the law. He says we are squares and that he can handle his own life. We need help and we need it now. Please, Ann, guide us. -- Desperate Parents

Dear Parents: It's only a guess, but I suspect your son is smoking pot. This might sound loony to you, but I suggest that you and your husband go for counseling and learn how to handle your anxieties about the boy. It may be that your overreacting may be compelling him to defy you. Ask your family doctor to recommend a counselor, or the county or state mental health society can help you.

Dear Ann Landers: I read somewhere that a tattoo can be removed by rubbing salt on it, but it should be done under a doctor's supervision.

I had some tattoo work done on my arms when I was young and foolish and now I want to get rid of it.

Please tell me if common table salt is used and what kind of doctor should do it. -- Dumb Past

Dear D.P.: A tattoo can be removed by applying table salt to that area (it should be done by a dermatologist), but the more modern approach, dermabrasion -- a fast- rotating sandpaper wheel -- produces neater results.

It's not easy to recognize love, especially the first time around. Acquaint yourself with the guidelines. Read Ann Landers' booklet, "Love or Sex and How To Tell the Difference." For a copy, mail 35 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self- addressed envelope with your request to Ann Landers, P. O. Box 3346, Chicago, Ill. 60654.

Thieves hit Elks Lodge

Thieves took a safe containing approximately $300 in cash, $200 in checks and money from a juke box, cigaret machine and a cash drawer from the Dexter Elks Lodge on Highway 14 West. The burglary is believed to have occurred sometime Sunday.

A car belonging to Allen Farmer of Dexter was reportedly stolen sometime before 11 p.m. Sunday from the Pentecostal Church parking lot. The car was recovered in Dexter early today.

A house owned by Raymond Humphries on Five Mile Road west of Dexter was broken into sometime over the weekend. Humphries was moving and only a few items were left in the house. Nothing was reported missing.

The Bunge Corp., located near Avert, was burglarized over the weekend. Taken in the burglary were two sets of scales and a check- writing machine. Burglars got into the building by breaking out a window.

Grain

CHICAGO (AP) — Wheat, soybean and corn futures prices were sharply higher in early dealings on the Chicago Board of Trade today.

On the opening, Chicago wheat futures were 6 to 10 cents a bushel higher, July 4.20; Gulf hard red wheat was not traded; corn was 1½ to 5 higher, July 2.99; oats were 1 lower to ½ higher, July 1.39 and soybeans were 4 to 15 higher, July 5.72.

Baseball stand vandalized

EAST PRAIRIE — For the second time this year equipment for the summer baseball program has been stolen from the storage area in the concession stand at H. A. Jones Park.

The lock on the building was pryed off sometime Saturday night, and about $150 worth of new equipment, including bats, balls, helmets and catcher equipment was stolen.

Jones Hedge, a baseball commissioner, said today a $25 reward is being offered for information leading to recovery of the equipment.

Vanduser store robbed Friday

BENTON — Approximately seven shirts and hats were stolen from Polley's Store at Vanduser sometime Friday night, according to Scott County Deputy Bud Jones.

Entry was gained by breaking a window.

The robbery was discovered Saturday morning by Mrs. Ida Mae Polley the owner.

Carpenter shot after fight with girlfriend

ESSEX — Howard Carpenter of Essex was shot Saturday night when he attempted to force his way into the home of his girlfriend, Mary Poe, according to Stoddard County Sheriff Ralph Mouser.

The incident occurred at 9 p.m. when Carpenter attempted to cut the screen on Mrs. Poe's door. The couple, estimated to be in their early 60s, reportedly had been arguing earlier in a local tavern.

Carpenter was shot with a .22 caliber rifle just below the right rib cage. He was taken to Dexter Memorial Hospital where his condition is listed as satisfactory.

Electric oven catches fire

CHARLESTON — Two calls were answered over the weekend by the fire department.

At 5:50 p.m. Sunday, the department was called to the Dale Litchford home, 6 Crescent Drive, to extinguish a fire in an electric oven. The only damage reported was to the oven.

At 1:30 p.m. Saturday, the department was called to extinguish a grass fire at 406 N. Locust St.

Drugs worth $193 stolen

CHARLESTON — Drugs, valued at $193 were taken this weekend in a burglary of the Clinic Pharmacy in the Fenton Clinical Group building, 1200 E. Marshall St.

The burglary, which occurred sometime between 4 p.m. Saturday and 1:10 p.m. Sunday, was discovered by Dr. T. P. Fenton. A door on the east side of the building was pryed open to gain access to the main building. The door to the pharmacy department was also pried open.

Over 1,100 assorted tablets were taken. Approximately $600 in cash in the drug department was not stolen.

The Charleston police department is investigating.

Three Charleston juveniles were apprehended by police at 9:12 p.m. Saturday at the A. D. Simpson Park on S. Main Street. The three reportedly had broken into the concession stand and were in the process of stealing six 32-ounce bottles of soft drinks. The three were turned over to juvenile authorities.

Thieves enter local homes

The Phyllis N. Weathers home, 206 Kramer Drive, was burglarized sometime between June 24 and Saturday, according to police.

Taken were two green tents, valued at $90; a set of golf clubs, worth $100; one dark wood desk, valued at $200; and one iron bedstead.

Police said the golf clubs were taken from a closet and the other things from the basement. There was no sign of forced entry.

Police said someone returned the tents Sunday, but the other items were still missing.

Eight pictures, valued at $50 were taken from a wall in the Jane Benthall apartment, 911 Davis Blvd.

The theft occurred between 5:30 p.m. Friday and 7:15 p.m. Sunday. Police said there was no sign of forced entry.

reduction was seen in the Memphis market nearly a month ago. Ring explained, "They are on a different market than we are. We usually run about four cents a gallon cheaper anyway."

Ronald Acker, the manager of Turner Dairy refused Friday to release any information about his milk prices. He said, "It's not the sort of thing the public ought to know."

Foremost Foods local supervisor, Joe Evans of Sikeston said Friday he had heard some word that prices might be reduced, but would wait for orders from his manager.

Lester Mills, district manager of Foremost Foods in Paragould, Ark., told The Daily Standard Friday, "If the market goes up, we'll go up; if the market goes down, we'll go down." Mills would not comment on any specific plans to change Foremost's milk prices.

Mrs. Cleora Woods, speaking for Woods Dairy in Sikeston, said, "There have been rumors that there will be a price decrease, but we have no official notice."

Thanks to the "milk war", local consumers can purchase milk for about the same price as they paid in February or March.

The charge stemmed from a shooting on May 23 of John Davis, at the trailer park. She had waived a preliminary hearing and was bound over for trial in Circuit Court. She had returned Wednesday from the state hospital in Farmington where she had been ordered for mental examination.

The body is at Richards Funeral Home in New Madrid pending location of relatives.

Coroner Gene Clayton said today an inquest will not be held.

According to highway patrol records, the fatality raised the number of traffic deaths in Southeast Missouri this year to 53, compared with 50 persons killed on area highways at the same time last year.

A rural Perryville bicyclist was critically injured at 12:20 p.m. Sunday four miles west of Perryville on Route Four when his bicycle was struck by a car driven by Guy Samuel Matthews, 23, of Greenville, Ill.

The accident occurred when Matthews, in the westbound lane, sounded his horn at Anthony Wayne Milburn, 9, of Perryville Route One, who was eastbound in the westbound lane. Matthews swerved his car to the left and struck the bicycle and boy with the right front of the car.

The boy was taken to Perry County Hospital in Perryville and later transferred to Cardinal Glennon Hospital in St. Louis.

Fern Murphy, 51, of Chaffee was seriously injured at 8:40 p.m. Sunday on an unmarked county road three miles southeast of Rockview when her northbound car, on the wrong side of the road, collided head on with a southbound auto driven by Thomas B. Heisserer, 23, of Cape Girardeau.

Mrs. Murphy was taken to Chaffee General Hospital.

A Knobel, Ark. woman was seriously injured at 10:50 p.m. Saturday on Highway 160 three miles east of Doniphan when the car in which she was riding ran off the road on a curve and struck a culvert.

Roberta Conway, 36, was taken to Doctors Hospital in Poplar Bluff for treatment. The driver of the car, Jessie Mack Conway, 36, of Knobel was not injured.

An accident at 10:40 p.m. Saturday on a gravel road two miles west of Qulin resulted in minor injuries to two persons.

According to the patrol, a westbound car driven by Billy L. Jones, 16, of Qulin went out of control on a curve and ran into a ditch.

Jones and a passenger, Samuel Joe Hill, 15, of Qulin were taken to Lucy Lee Hospital in Poplar Bluff.

pace, if one considers the rate of inflation. I suggest that it gradually relax the policy," he remarked.

"They might find, as many economists have said, that interest rates will fall and the stock market and the home- building industry will rebound," he remarked.

Eagleton said if the relaxation of monetary policy does not help, then the Federal Reserve could simply return to a condition of tight monetary policy.

In an interview before the banquet, Sen. Eagleton commented on his trip to Cape Girardeau Saturday morning when he talked to businessmen and officials about the national flood insurance program.

"The objective of the program was to provide communities and citizens with a fairer and faster way of obtaining assistance than was available under the old disaster relief program," he said. "It was never intended to become a bludgeon to enforce federal building and zoning policies favored by some bureaucrats at the Department of Housing and Urban Development."

Eagleton said he had written to chairman John Sparkman, D-Ala., of the Senate Banking, Housing and Urban Affairs Committee calling for early oversight hearings and possible amendments to the act.

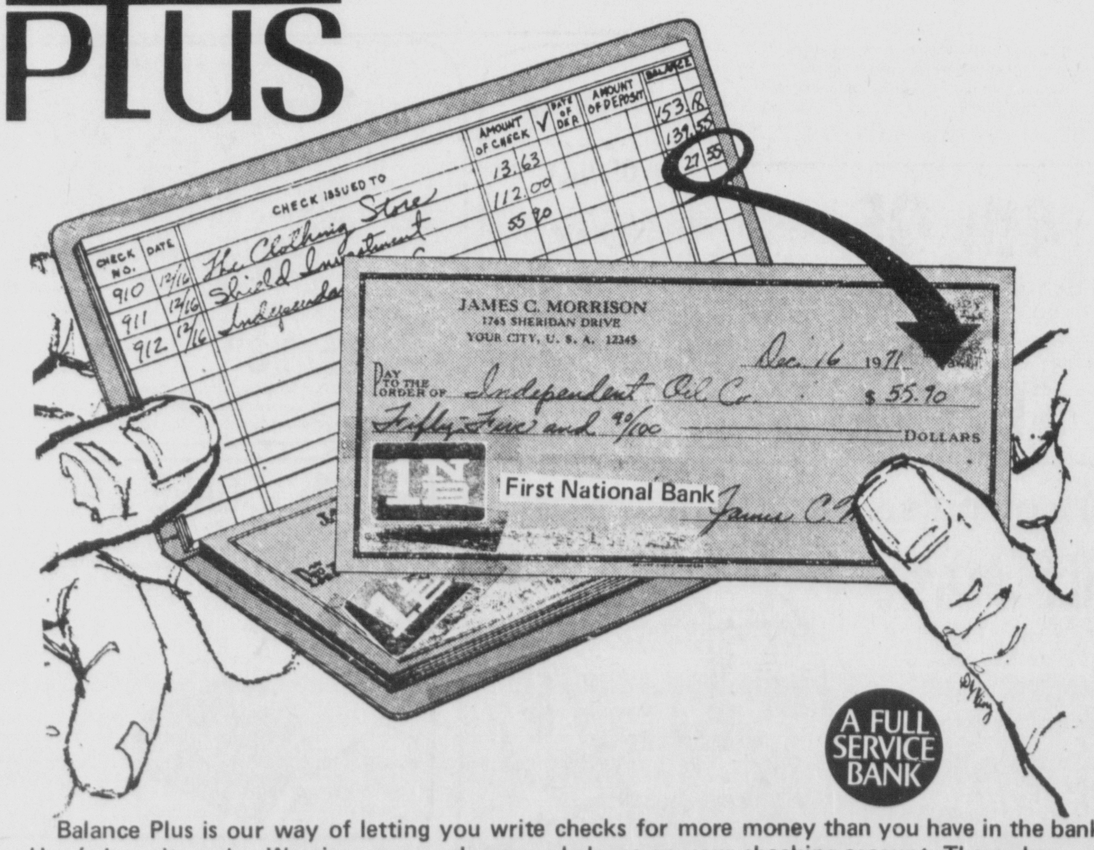
balance PLUS



Balance Plus is our way of letting you write checks for more money than you have in the bank. Here's how it works. We give you a cash reserve balance on your checking account. Then when you need some extra cash for a special purchase or an emergency, it's there waiting for you. You just write an ordinary check and reserve cash is transferred to your account. Then each month a small amount of cash is transferred from your checking account balance back into the reserve. It's like writing yourself a loan. You pay absolutely nothing to have your Balance Plus account set up. No charge until you use it, and then you pay only a small charge o the amount you use. With Balance Plus, you'll always have money for emergencies like hospital bills or car reapirs. Or you can pay cash for your new suit. Splurge on a vacation. Take advantage of special sales. And overdrafts will be a thing of the past.

Cardinals surprise Mets

NEW YORK (AP) — Paul Pryor had his thumb upraised, signaling out. Chris Pelekoudas had his palms down, signaling safe. The New York Mets had a hard-earned and desperately needed 4-3 victory.

Then, suddenly, Pelekoudas had his thumb in the air, too, and the Mets, who had flung themselves happily into their clubhouse, had to come out again.

But not for long. St. Louis' Bake McBride took care of that with a two-run homer that gave the Cardinals a 10-inning 5-3 victory and a Sunday doubleheader sweep.

It was a wild scene at Shea Stadium. The Mets, who had lost the first game 5-2, were trailing 3-1 going into the bottom of the ninth in the nightcap.

But then things began to happen. Don Hahn singled, Ron Hodges, who had homered earlier, singled. George Theodore bunted for a hit. Nobody out and the bases loaded.

Wayne Garrett, whose errors at third had helped the Cards to the winning run in the first game and the tiebreaker in the second one, hit a sinking liner to center field. McBride shorthopped it and threw to third, forcing Hodges, who thought the ball might be caught.

Hahn scored on the play and Theodore came home with the tying run on Ted Martinez' single. That brought up Cleon Jones. He hit a bullet toward Reggie Smith. The right fielder raced in, dived and...

And what? Pelekoudas, the first base umpire, on the rim of the outfield grass, signaled the ball was a hit, that Smith had trapped it. Garrett crossed home plate with what seemed to be the winning run.

But while Pelekoudas was signaling hit, Pryor, the second base umpire, was signaling out—that Smith had caught the ball for the third out.

Smith, who rolled over and held his glove aloft after grabbing the ball, tore in at Pelekoudas, screaming and jumping up and down. And, while the Mets were disappearing into their dugout, the Cardinals, led by Manager Red Schoendienst, were charging out of theirs.

"We decided to review the whole thing," Pelekoudas said later. "It was a novel situation. The whole question was who had the best view of the play. I had a good shot at it. It appeared to be a trap. But Paul said he had the edge, that he was further out on the outfield grass. He said the man caught it and I took his word for it. He said to me, 'Chris, I swear the man caught it.' That was good enough for me."

But a taped replay of the controversial catch, someone mentioned, appeared to show that the ball had, in fact, been trapped.

"I'm not going to talk about television replays," Pelekoudas interrupted. "I wish I could go back and review a few calls I've made in my time. But The Man Upstairs gave me only two eyes and a certain amount of judgment to work with.

"Reggie swore up and down that he caught it...and Yogi swore up and down that he didn't."

Yogi Berra, the Mets' manager, was swearing plenty, both during the confusion that followed Smith's catch and in the clubhouse later.

"I've gotten cheated three or four times this year," he growled. "Every time I go out and ask the ump to check with another one, he says, 'It's my play and that's how I saw it.' Then I've asked another ump and he's said, 'It's not my play.' But now everybody's asking everybody.

"Chris told me Pryor was on the outfield grass, closer to the play. Bull! He was on the dirt. And Pryor was looking straight in on the play. Chris had a better view. He was off to the side. He could see if the ball was trapped or not.

"Then I asked for the ball," Berra said, mentioning that he wanted to look for possible grass stains. "All of a sudden, nobody knew where the ball was."

"I tossed it on the mound when I was running back to the dugout," Smith said. "Man, there's no way that was a trap. The only way you can trap a ball is if the glove is up and down. I had it flat on the grass. No way that was a trap. No way it could've been. I had it."

And Schoendienst, delighted with the sweep that gave St. Louis a 2½-game lead over Montreal and Philadelphia in the National League East, said:

"It was Pryor's play. He called it out. He called it right."

But what about the TV replay, he was asked.

"Pictures can lie," he grinned.

Mike Tyson triggered a three-run fourth inning off Jerry Koosman and Ken Reitz homered in a two-run eighth off reliever Tug McGraw for the first-game victory. McGraw also was the victim of McBride's game-winning shot in the nightcap.

Griffin 2-hits Bank

Harts rallied for a 12-10 win over Eagles and Home Materials rode the two hit pitching performance of Griffin to Jr. Babe Ruth league wins.

The Eagles out- hit Harts 9-5, but 10 walks and poor fielding opened the door for Harts, who claimed a 5-2 lead in the first inning, but had to go eight frames to claim the win after the Eagles had rallied to tie the game in the last of the seventh.

Ken Standridge fanned 10 and gave up only two walks and led the team in hitting with two hits, including a double. Gilbow was the games leading batsman, with three hits and a double for the Eagles.

Matthews and Lefler had two hits apiece to lead a six hit Home Material attack to back Griffin's top performance.

Smith doubled and had both of the Bank of Sikeston's two hits.

The New Madrid County Little - League – Babe Ruth baseball tournament gets underway at Parma at 7:30 this evening with Lilbourn and Marston Little League teams squaring off in the event opener. It was incorrectly reported in Saturday's edition of The Daily Standard that these two teams would play Thursday, but the winner of the game will play New Madrid Thursday.

Parma and Risco little league teams collide Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. and New Madrid's Jr. Babe Ruth team plays Parma at 8:30. Final first round games match Lilbourn and Marston's Jr. Babe Ruth teams Thursday at 8:30 with the finals set Friday in both divisions.

Royals rally clips Oakland

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Baseball managers are an optimistic breed but you could not blame Kansas City's Jack McKeon if he didn't see the bright side against Oakland.

"We're down 4-0 and only one hit against Catfish Hunter," said McKeon, considering the situation his Royals faced in the sixth inning of Sunday's game. Kansas City had won two of the first three games in the weekend series, so McKeon wasn't feeling too terrible. "You start thinking you'll settle for a tie in the series," he admitted.

But the Royals had other ideas. "You have to give our guys credit," McKeon continued. "There was some kind of atmosphere in the dugout."

It got even better when the Royals kayoed Hunter for five runs in the sixth and then came from behind twice more to defeat the American League West Division leaders 8-7.

Elsewhere in the league Sunday, Cleveland battered Boston 9-2, Baltimore shut out New York 3-0, Texas walloped California 9-2, Chicago split a doubleheader with Minnesota, winning 8-3 and then losing 6-3, and Milwaukee divided a pair with Detroit, winning 4-1 before losing 3-2.

The win put the Royals within 2½ games of the A's.

Rangers 9, Angels 2

Texas also moved within 2½ games of the A's by whacking California.

The Rangers, top hitting team in the majors, exploded for six runs in a wild fifth inning capped by Cesar Tovar's two-run single.

Indians 9, Red Sox 2

George Hendrick poked a three-run homer, helping Cleveland slug Boston and moving the Indians within 2¼ games of first-place Boston after three victories in their four-game series with the Red Sox.

Brewers 4-2, Tigers 1-3

Jim Northrup drove in two runs with a first inning homer and then helped Detroit build another with a third inning sngle as the Tigers defeated Milwaukee 3-2 in the second game of a doubleheader. The Brewers had taken the opener 4-1 despite being held hitless for five innings by Woodie Fryman.

Orioles 3 Yankees 0

Mike Cuellar tossed a six-hitter and Baltimore shut out New York for the second straight game. The Orioles scored all their runs with the aid of an error and a balk.

Twins 3-6, White Sox 8-3

Jorge Orta ripped six hits including five straight in the first game as the Chicago White Sox split a doubleheader with Minnesota, winning the opener 8-3 but dropping the second 6-3.

Orta's first-game hits gave him eight straight, including three in Saturday night's game. His streak ended in the first inning of the nightcap.

National League scores: Pittsburgh 11-3, Philadelphia 82; St. Louis 5-5, New York 2-3; Montreal 10, Chicago 2; Atlanta 7, Cincinnati 3; Los Angeles 5, San Francisco 3; Houston 3-5, San Diego 1-6.

NFL strike near

WASHINGTON (AP) — The first picket lines are expected in San Diego on Wednesday as the players' union strikes the National Football League in a dispute over the so-called freedom issues.

Rookies and free agents, who do not become eligible to join the NFL Players Association until the regular season starts, may hold the key to the outcome. But it's a matter of doubt whether they'll play even the exhibition games.

Bill Curry of the Houston Oilers, president of the union, scheduled a news conference at the association headquarters here to discuss action on the strike which began officially at midnight Sunday.

Negotiations on a new collective bargaining agreement between the players and the NFL Management Council, the owners' bargaining agent, broke down last Wednesday when the two parties reached an almost insurmountable impasse.

"The basic issue is the right of a player to move from one team to another when his contract has expired," Curry said. "We think he should have that right just as everyone else has."

John Thompson, executive director of the management council, said the owners offered to modify the contract system, proposed increased insurance and pension benefits and were responsible for bringing the federal mediator into the dispute.

"We've done some substantial things but they refused to budge off their position of total freedom or withdraw a single demand," said Thompson.

The players went on strike four years ago, but the 1970 boycott ended before actual preseason play started. This year's walkout shapes up as long and tough to settle.

The club owners have said they intend to play rookies and free agents if the veterans don't report. If enough report and the fans are willing to pay to see them, the players union probably will have to buckle and modify its 63 demands.

On the other hand, if the association is successful in keeping the rookies and free agents out of camp, the owners will have to make concessions.

The union's executive committee, headed by Curry, is planning to be on hand for the start of picketing at the San Diego training camp. The committee also plans to appear at the other camps scheduled to open this week, including the Evanston, Ill., site of the College All-Stars who are to play the Super Bowl champion Miami Dolphins in Chicago June 26.

Elks fail to win

The Elks were the only Sr. Babe Ruth league team to fail to post a victory over the weekend. Leible Implement claimed a 8-3 win over the Elks, Security National Bank edged the Optimist 6-5 and Optimist took Leible Implement 10-9. Security National Bank and Elks failed to have enough players to play their Saturday evening game.

Dennis Cobb stopped the Elks on two hits Friday night and got an 11 hit backing from his teammates, rallying from a 3-2 deficit in the fourth with five big runs.

Bill Schatzley, Rick Dyer and Cobb had two hits team for Leible while Dwain Self and Ron Newman had the Elks lone safties.

Don Taylor mastered a three hitter for Security National as they held off a fourth inning rally to preserve their 6-5 win over Optimist. Mark Couch provided the hittin with three safties.

Mark Couch and Brian Crites doubled for the winners and Cris Alberts slammed a big triple for the losers.

Charlie Miller pitched and hit Optimist to their 10-9 decision over Lieble, going five for five at the plate and holding Leible at bay with a 10 strikeout performance.

Ken Newton and Dennis Cobb had two hits apiece to pace Leible. Newton doubled.

John Leible hit a double for the losers and Bill Lewis connected for a three run triple for Optimist.

Deer season has changes

JEFFERSON CITY — The Conservation Commission has set a nine-day 1974 deer season Nov. 16-24 with some significant changes from past seasons.

One major change is that Unit Six, the east central area of Missouri, will be divided into two units. There have been 10 major management units through the state.

Unit Six is unique because there are areas within it that have both too many deer and not enough deer. The boundaries of Unit 6A will be Interstate 70 on the north, Highway 63 on the west, Highway 50 on the south and the Mississippi River on the east -- basically the Missouri River hills.

Unit 6B will be the remainder of the old Unit Six, south of Highway 50.

By management units, the season will be bucks only from Nov. 16-22 in Units 1, 4, 5, 7, 8 and 9 and any deer Nov. 23-24. In Units 2, 3, 6B and 10, the entire season will be bucks only.

In Unit 6A, there will be a quota of 1,200 antlerless deer permits, an innovation in Missouri hunting. "The quota is intended to limit the harvest of anterless deer to less than 1,100," says Mike Milonski, Wildlife Division chief.

Farmers as defined in the Wildlife Code may take a doe on the farm where they live any time during the season in Unit 6A.

Other hunters will apply for the antlerless deer permits in Unit 6A and will be drawn by lot.

The Commission also re-defined an antlered deer. "The regulation last year was intended to protect fawn bucks, but permit the taking of spike bucks," Milonski says. "There was a lot of confusion, so we've re-defined it."

The new definition reads that a legal buck must have "one antler at least three inches long."

Wildlife biologists have found that no buck fawn ever has had a three inch antler and spike bucks rarely have antlers shorter than three inches.

The season continues to have the bucks - only portion first, with the antlerless deer portion last. "Analysis of 1973 shows that this puts the most pressure on bucks and limits the harvest of does, which is what we want for a healthy, growing herd," Milonski says.

Hunting pressure in 1973 was up considerably. Permit sales jumped 12.9 per cent, compared to the 10- year average of 7.2 -- possibly spurred by high meat prices.

The number of man-days (881,934) increased 10.8 per cent, a new record. Hunting pressure was up in every unit except Unit One, northwest Missouri, and even in Units Four, Six and 10 which were bucks- only the entire season.

Hunter numbers increased 25 per cent in Unit Four, western Missouri, and 12 per cent in Unit Six. The total firearms harvest was up 10 per cent, but the statewide doe harvest was down1.5 per cent.

Arthur Custis, both of the 82d Airborne Division, never met until they bumped each other while parachuting during Joint Service Exercise "Solid Shield '74." New Madrid cheerleaders attend camp

New Madrid High School cheerleaders, who attended the third session of the 17th annual cheerleading clinic at Arkansas State University in Jonesboro, Ark., June 17-21, from left, are Sabra Edwards, Dana Hendricks, Noell Cooper (captain), Kim Estes and Mary Kay Perry. Other squad members who attended the clinic were Rita Cooper and Sally Poyner. The girls were taught new cheers, tumbling and pom-pom routines. They received several outstanding and excellent ribbons.

Eagleton urges farm research

COLUMBIA — Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton today told University of Missouri agriculture school officials that he was confident the Senate would approve a significant increase in farm research funds this year.

Eagleton, who is a member of the Senate Agriculture Appropriations Subcommittee, made that prediction during a tour of research projects at the school.

He said there was deep concern in Congress about the state of agriculture research in this country today, noting a 13 per cent decline in scientific man- years devoted to crop and livestock research over the past eight years.

"At a time when this country and the world are facing critical food shortages, it is imperative that we begin to build now for a more productive farm economy through basic research," Eagleton said, adding, "Increased farm productivity not only will help farmers increase their income, but is the American housewife's best hope for keeping the family grocery bill at the low levels we have enjoyed in the past.

Eagleton said he was supporting an increase in Agricultural Research Service appropriations and also a major boost in funds for state agriculture experiment stations.

He said he was particularly strong for a proposed increase of $36 million over 1974 appropriations for work being done by state universities and land grant colleges.

In addition to crop and livestock research, Eagleton said it was important that an effort be made to develop new methods and substitutes to offset expected long- range fertilizer shortages. He said development of ways to harness wind and solar power for specific farm use should also have a high priority.

FUNNY BUSINESS — By Roger Bollen

Cancer research gets giant boost

COLUMBIA — Fundamental research that may help in the early detection of cancer has been given a giant boost at the University of Missouri- Columbia.

The National Cancer Institute has renewed its contract with the Experiment Station Chemical Laboratory (ESCL) for the fourth straight year - this time to the tune of $163,000. In a little over 3 years, the project has received $434,000 in contract cancer research support.

Dr. Charles Gehrke ESCL director and professor of agricultural chemistry, and his Lunar Science Team of Dr. Robert Zumwalt, Kenneth Kuo, and other staff members, have developed advanced techniques for meauring molecular changes that occur when cancer is present.

Besides their usefulness in cancer detection, these chemical analyses help doctors who are using chemotherapy as a cancer treatment.

"By following biological markers through the blood and urine, the doctors will know when chemotherapy should be stopped or continued," explained Gehrke. "Further, the tests will help the physicians to know when the body can no longer tolerate massive drug doses or combinations of cancer drugs."

Professor Gehrke, Kuo, and Zumwalt were the first in the world to develop the new chemical methods for analyzing polyamines, a group of molecules in urine, and the metabolism break- down products of the genetic code molecules. They have also developed a method for rapidly analyzing the amino acids in urine and in another method are able to measure the special sugar- protein ratios in blood which have been shown as changes in breast cancer.

"Urine and blood are very complicated and difficult to analyze because of the hundreds of different molecules in them," noted Gehrke. "The tough part is determining and separating out what you're looking for. Then you just apply all the chromatographic chemistry that you know to search for it, identify it, and determine it."

The cancer research contract was first awarded to Professor Gehrke after he developed new methods for analyzing genetic code molecules and amino acids in samples taken from the moon in the search for extraterrestrial life.

At UMC, Deans Richard J. Aldreich and Elmer R. Kiehl stated, "We are proud of the scientific accomplishments of Gherke and his team and wish them every success in their experiments."

So far, the chemical methods have been used to analyze blood and urine samples from 1500 patients with various kinds of cancer from the Mayo Clinic, Rochester; Johns Hopkins Medical School, Baltimore; Veteran's Hospital, Washington, DC; National Cancer Institute, Bethesda; and the Columbia Cancer Research Center (CRC).

Dr. James Hueser, M.D. of CRC, and Dr. T. Phillip Waalkes, M.D., Project Officer of the National Cancer Institute, direct all of the medical and chemotherapy studies. Dr. Gehrke and his team of analytical biochemists are the sample analyzers.

Four different reports on this research have been submitted to the Journal of Chromatography, Cancer Research, and Journal of Laboratory and Clinical Medicine for publication.

Guardsmen eligible for increase

JEFFERSON CITY — Major General Charles M. Kiefner, the adjutant general of Missouri has announced that guardsmen and civil service personnel are eligible for a retroactive pay increase for the period Oct. 1 through Dec. 31, 1972.

"We will authorize the mailing of checks to the individuals concerned after we receive further instructions from the National Guard Bureau in Washington, D. C.," Gen. Kiefner said.

The guardsmen's eligibility was carried in an April 16 Army message which announced that Executive Order 11777, issued by President Nixon on April 12, moved the effective date of the civil service pay law from Jan. 1, 1973 to Oct. 1, 1972.

As a result, guardsmen and civil service employes now are due the difference in pay for the three months. The Presidential action amended Executive Order 11691 of Dec. 15, 1972, which first announced the increase.

"We are most concerned," Kiefner added, "about those guardsmen and civil service personnel who have been retired or separated from the Missouri National Guard during those three months. These individuals are due retroactive pay and should maintain contact with their former units to insure payment."

According to Kiefner, the Department of Defense must provide additional military guidance about how guardsmen are to be paid, adding that they have no idea when they will be able to begin paying guardsmen the retroactive pay due them.

"We are not talking about much money for the individual," Kiefner replied, "but every little bit helps. A Sergeant E-5 with six years of service would be entitled to an additional $12.24 for the three MUTA-4s for the three- month period."

BENEFIT GAME SET

NEW YORK (AP) — The 12th annual Mayor's Trophy game between the New York Yankees and Mets will be played at Shea Stadium Thursday night, May 30. Shea will be the home of the Yankees the next two American League seasons while Yankee Stadium is totally reconstructed.

All proceeds will be divided between the two teams's foundations that individually support amateur baseball in New York's metropolitan area. More than $1.25 million in net gate receipts have gone to sandlot baseball programs in the past.

Sewage facility regulations approved

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Clean Water Commission has approved regulations on sewage facilities for future subdivisions throughout Missouri.

Although there are many exemptions, the regulations will generally prohibit the use of septic tanks in subdivisions of 10 or more lots of less than 15,000 square feet each or in subdivisions of 10 or more dwellings.

The regulations will go into effect 10 days after they are filed with the secretary of state. A commission staff member said after Wednesday's approval that they will be filed Friday.

Existing developments, as long as the septic tanks do not cause pollution, won't be affected.

Single family residences and developments of less than 10 connecting lots or developments with less than 10 houses can have septic tanks.

However, the owner of a home with a septic tank would be required to hook onto a sewer line if it runs within 100 feet of the home. The homeowner could be exempted if he could show that such a tank meets commission requirements.

Only centralized sewage collection and treatment systems can be used on lots or tracts less than 15,000 square feet but septic tanks can be used on an interim basis.

Septic tanks can be constructed in subdivisions where the lots exceed three acres in size if the engineering report shows a central sewage collection and treatment system to be not feasible.

Septic tanks cannot be used on lots or tracts of less than three acres unless it can be shown that a central facility is not economically feasible. In that case, the effluent must be retained on the lot or tract of origin and must be 25 feet or more from the property line.

Also exempted from the septic tank ban will be developers who have sold 20 per cent of the lots in a subdivision already started, developers of recreational subdivisions already started and with less than 15,000 square feet per lot, and developers of subdivisions who could prove that a central sewage system is not feasible

The purpose of the regulations is to prevent pollution of lakes, rivers or underground water supplies by septic tank seepage.

It was the third hearing on the regulations.

The regulations require developers to publish notices in newspapers 30 days before filing an application with the commission for an exemption, and the commission shall act on the application within 30 days after hearings are held on the application.

Colleges cut standards

NEW YORK (AP) — Colleges competing for federal aid are lowering standards and undermining faculty quality to hire more women and blacks, according to a report sponsored by the Carnegie Commission on Higher Education.

The report by Dr. Richard A. Lester said the inadequate number of qualified faculty members available from the two groups has forced the universities to recruit from each other, playing "musical chairs" with their faculties.

The report also charged that new minority and women appointees were being paid more than white male faculty members at the same level, and that some of the appointees do not have the qualifications required for their tenured and nontenured positions.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare is requiring 1,500 colleges and universities with federal contracts to develop affirmative action programs for increasing faculty representation of minority groups and guaranteeing their equal treatment.

Wild game trade approved

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The largest interstate trade of wild game involving Missouri has been approved by the state Conservation Commission.

The commission said Wednesday that over the next three years Missouri will send 200 wild turkeys to Iowa in return for 5,000 Iowa pheasants. The trade, according to officials, is aimed at extending the state's pheasant range from the 17 counties in which pheasant hunting is currently permitted.

The commission also said trades are being planned with both Texas and Wisconsin which wild turkeys from Missouri will be exchanged for ruffed grouse.

Missouri is able to use some of its wild turkeys in trades for other wild game because the wild turkey population in the state...

Firefighters say city doesn't pay minimum wage

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo. (AP)—The president of the Cape Girardeau Association of Firefighters, Local 1084, said Friday the union has filed charges with the Department of Labor saying the city is not complying with the new federal minimum wage law.

Max Jauch said some city firefighters were not being paid the new minimum of $1.90 per hour.

Jauch said City Manager W.G. Lawley was notified of the charges when they were filed two weeks ago, but replied that the 13 firefighters affected would not be paid the new minimum wage until all appeal procedures were completed.

"In Mr. Lawley's opinion, the city is paying the standard now," Jauch said.

NOBODY HAS ANY MONEY

NEW YORK (AP) — A series of meetings with each of the city's five borough presidents has been set up by City Council President Paul O'Dwyer, to try to save the free concert performances of opera by the Metropolitan Opera in parks during the summer.

Otrabanda Company to perform

The Otrabanda Company of Yellow Springs, Ohio, will make its second annual appearance in New Madrid on July 4 to perform an all-new "River Raft Revue". The vaudeville - circus - carnival show will be at 7 p.m. in the company's circus tent erected in the city park on Mill and Crisler streets. No admission will be charged. Members of the troupe, standing, from left, include Nelson Camp, Steve Stern, Joanne Zonis, Ellen Maddow, Roger Babb and David Dawkins. Kneeling are Diane Brown and Graham Paul.

'River Raft Revue' scheduled July 4

NEW MADRID — The Otrabanda Company, a professional theater troupe from Yellow Springs, Ohio, will make its second annual appearance at New Madrid on July 4 to present an all-new "River Raft Revue", which will be free to the public.

The performance is scheduled at 7 p.m. in the company's red and yellow circus tent, which will be erected at the city park at the corner of Mill and Crisler streets.

John Maynard, advance agent and one of the company musicians, said the marching band would like to greet the people and entertain those who might want to picnic at the site before the performance.

Otrabanda members are floating down the Mississippi River on a home-made, unmotered raft and performing free shows in river towns from St. Louis to New Orleans.

This is the second annual tour down the Mississippi, sponsored again by a grant from National Endowment for the Arts, a federal agency.

This year's revue, aimed at entertaining both children and adults, will portray a delightful tale of the trials and tribulations of a band of traveling entertainers, complete with music, magic, comedy acts, juggling, zany antics, pantomime and many surprises.

Otrabanda will stop and perform in 30 towns and prisons along the river this summer, arriving in New Orleans for a final show on Aug. 21. Other stops scheduled in this area include Tiptonville, Tenn., on July 6 and Caruthersville on July 8.

During the winter months, the actors perform original plays, as well as the "River Raft Revue", throughout the United States. The company intends to return down the river each summer with an all- new show, and in 1976 plans to travel and perform on its own Mississippi River showboat.

Rural gas sale date may be moved ahead

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency proposed Friday to require sale of unleaded gasoline at rural service stations by Oct. 1 of this year, three months earlier than previously proposed.

All service stations selling more than 200,000 gallons of gasoline a year must have provided unleaded gasoline by today.

EPA originally proposed that the requirement take effect for these rural stations on Jan. 1, 1975, because it believed that much time would be needed to obtain the special nozzle spouts needed for lead-free gasoline pumps.

In proposing to move up the requirement to Oct. 1, the EPA said "the nozzle spout shortage may have been overestimated" and it appears possible for the rural stations to comply with the shorter deadline.

EPA invited written comments within 30 days.

Young Kennedy suffers cancer side-effects

WASHINGTON (AP) — Edward M. Kennedy Jr. is hospitalized in Ireland with side-effects of treatment for cancer, his father's office announced Friday.

A spokesman for Sen. Edward M. Kennedy said the son, 12, is suffering a mild reaction traceable to treatments designed to prevent a recurrence of bone cancer. The cancer resulted in amputation of a leg last Nov. 17.

The son is vacationing in Ireland with a group of schoolmates.

DO YOU KNOW THE ANATOMY OF THE EAR?

By

Are you familiar with the anatomy of the ear? There are many parts and each has a specific function.

First there is the external ear. It is the prominent appendage on each side of the head. It is composed largely of elastic cartilage.

Next comes the middle ear. This includes the eardrum, the hammer, anvil, and stirrup. Then comes the inner ear. The inner ear has been described as the best protected organ in the human system. It consists of two bodies: the osseous labyrinth and the membranous labyrinth.

Other parts are the cochlea, the round window, and the Eustachian tube. Also, the mastoid cells, the external canal and the auricle.

Cerumen, commonly called ear-wax, is a normal excretion from glands in the ear canal.

Today in U.S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Monday, July 1, the 182nd day of 1974. There are 183 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1867, the Dominion of Canada was created by the British North America Act.

On this date:

In 1862, the U.S. Congress established the Bureau of Internal Revenue.

In 1863, the Civil War Battle of Gettysburg began.

In 1881, the American Red Cross was incorporated, with Clara Barton as president.

In 1898, Theodore Roosevelt and his Rough Riders carried out a victorious assault on San Juan hill in Cuba in the Spanish-American war.

In 1958, construction of the St. Lawrence Seaway was completed.

In 1966, the Medicare health program for elderly Americans went into effect.

Ten years ago: Orchestra conductor Pierre Monteux died at his Hancock, Maine, home at age 89.

Five years ago: Britain's Prince Charles was invested as Prince of Wales at Caernarvon Castle.

One year ago: An Israeli military attache, Colonel Yosef Alon, was shot to death in the driveway of his home in a Washington suburb.

Today's birthdays: Actress Leslie Caron is 43. Actor James Cagney is 70.

Thought for today: We are never deceived. We deceive ourselves —Goethe, German poet, 1749-1832.

Bond, legislators disagree on Mo. economic status

JEFFERSON CITY — Democratic leaders are critical of Gov. Christopher S. Bond's recent prediction that the state will face "a significant cash problem" this fall. They say these are "scare tactics" designed to keep the legislature from over-riding his appropriation vetoes.

A Bond administration spokesman, William J. Raftery, director of the accounting division of the Missouri Office of Administration, said September should be the most difficult month. "We expect to be able to pay all salaries," Raftery said. "But we are going to ask state agencies to voluntarily defer their discretionary expenditures."

Raftery said general revenue reserves will fall from $99 million in late June to approximately $10 million in September. This decrease is largely due to cash- flow problems which have long troubled the state government.

The difficulty arises because Missouri collects most of its revenue between January and June through personal income taxes and holiday sales tax receipts. Income is greater than expenditures, which are low during this period. This situation is responsible for the nearly $100 million surplus the state now has.

However, a high proportion of state expenditures is made between July and December when state earnings are lowest. The surplus which was accumulated in the first half of the year is reduced by large cash transfers such as a $48 million dispersal to public schools on Sept. 15. Also state agencies make many large purchases when the new fiscal year begins in July because they have new appropriations.

Adding to the problem this year are two major outlays which, Raftery said, will drop the cash reserves below the $30 million which state planners hoped to maintain as a "conservative minimum" to cover emergencies.

They are:

-- $20 million in unpredicted state income tax refunds, including payments to the elderly under new legislation.

-- $21 million which the Missouri Supreme Court ordered transferred from general revenue funds to the State Highway Commission in a 1973 decision.

Responding to Raftery's predictions, Sen. William J. Cason (D-Clinton), said, "Missouri is absolutely not headed for any financial difficulties in September which we don't expect."

"It's not unusual for us to come up short when school foundation money comes due in September," Cason said. "We sometimes have to defer part of the payments to the schools because of cash - flow problems in state finance."

Cason described the administration's forecasts as "scare tactics" to keep the legislature from over-riding the government's appropriations vetoes such as higher education, judge's pay increase and aid to school children.

"The letters are starting to come in from the little people in the state who will be affected by these cutbacks and the administration is trying to explain these vetoes to them," Cason said. "I think there are 23 votes in the Senate right now to over-ride the veto on higher education."

Cason, the Senate's president pro tem, said present expenditures are in line with revenues. "I personally selected fiscal conservatives for the appropriations committee, and they think we have enough money to pay for the programs the governor wants to cut back," he said.

"There will be no tax increase in Missouri during the next two years," Cason emphasized.

Rep. Harold L. Volkmer (D-Hannibal) also disagrees with the Bond administration's evaluation of the state financial picture.

"He's trying to use this to stop any appropriations vetoes from being over-ridden," Volkmer said.

Volkmer said a principal issue over which he disagreed with the governor is the $21 million transfer from general revenue to the State Highway Commission. This payment is a major factor in the governor's pessimism, Volkmer said, but it hasn't been determined that the transfer must be made in one large payment which would reduce the cash reserves to a critical level.

Since no definite date for the transfer has been set, Volkmer said, an agreement should be sought which would allow several small monthly payments.

A court case to determine the amount of the transfer is pending in the Cole County Circuit Court.

Bruce Ring, State Highway Commission general counsel, said, "As far as I know the rate of transfer of the funds is completely negotiable." No final accounting has been made, he said, but the court will decide the rate of transfer only if "we can't negotiate an agreement".

Record interest earned by state

JEFFERSON CITY — State Treasurer James I. Spainhower has announced a record amount of interest earned by Missouri in one fiscal year.

Figures released today by Spainhower show that the state will earn more than $22.4 million of interest in the fiscal year which ends midnight Sunday. That is more than double the amount earned last year and is about $10 million more than the $12.4 million earned in 1968-69, which had been the most productive year previously on record.

In announcing the interest figures today, Spainhower said, "Innovative investment policies of the treasurer's office have been combined with higher interest rates and greater income by Missouri's government to generate a substantial increase in the amount of return the people now receive on their tax dollars."

Commenting on the importance of earned interest to the financial condition of the state, Spainhower says the interest income on investments this year will be enough, for example, to pay for the entire operation of the Department of Corrections with sufficient funds remaining to meet the combined operating expenses of the offices of governor, Lt. governor, secretary of state, auditor and treasurer.

The $22.4 million Missouri earned in interest comes from the investment of approximately $725 million for varying lengths of time throughout the year. Spainhower says the average amount on deposit in interest-bearing accounts is about $300 to 350 million at any one time. Interest rates on investments varied from a low of 5.5 per cent in July to a high of 8.9 per cent in September.

Segments of our society are being separated by the language they create, says Philip Lesly in "The People Factor: Managing the Human Climate." Lesly says that specialization sometimes requires special terminology. But there is an added factor -- snobbery. People want to make sure others recognize they are on a different level. So they deliberately develop jargon that sets them apart.

A GREAT WAY TO GO!

Stimulating exercise, economical transportation or just plain fun . . . you can't beat cycling.

Proof of its popularity, there were more bicycles sold than automobiles during the past year! And the demand goes on. The people who still want a bike are reading the Classified columns of the newspaper every day . . . looking for a used model for sale.

How about you? If you have a bike you no longer ride, wouldn't you like to exchange it for cash? A low-cost ad in this newspaper is the way to go to find a cash buyer!

Rebel Daughter Troubles Dad

The tense relationship between suspiciously successful businessman Gustavus Gordon and his headstrong teenage daughter Elsa sets the scene for a new MARY WORTH episode starting Monday.

A widower, Gordon has tried to raise Elsa without the loving guidance of a mother, and now he finds her unruly and unladylike.

Gordon searches for a way to penetrate the wall separating he and his disrespectful daughter. Does Mary Worth have the answer?

New story starts Monday, July 8.

A completely executed replica of the Sikeston municipal airport as it will appear during the dedication celebration Tuesday and Wednesday, has been put in the large middle display window of Woolworth's store on Front street. The scene, arranged chiefly through the efforts of Z. E. McAmis, the store manager, and Harry Young, was constructed Thursday.

Salcedo -- Miss Elza Tate and Miss Bida Patterson shopped in Sikeston Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Essmueller, Arthur Essmueller and Dr. Harry Essenhoff of St. Louis came down last Saturday to visit with Gust Zacher and family. Sunday, Mr. Zacher and family and guests spent the day at Big Springs.

Tuesday, Dr. and Mrs. H. K. Kready, Miss Kathryn Clark and Mrs. Lyman Mitchell drove to Arcadia and attended the Methodist assembly. Others from Sikeston there that day to attend the assembly were: The Rev. E. H. Orear, Cecil Ree, Mrs. J. N. Ross, Mrs. J. W. Baker, sr., Mrs. Grover Baker, Mrs. Margaret Harper, and Miss Florence Baker.

A daughter was born Wednesday to Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Horton of New Madrid.

Charleston — Charles R. Trickey, 87, a well- known business and civic leader in Charleston, died Thursday at Barnes Hospital, St. Louis, where he had been a surgical patient.

East Prairie — Funeral services for Benjamin Franklin Tanner, 72, a retired farmer who lived nearly all his life in and around East Prairie, will be Saturday. He died at his home Wednesdy following a heart attack.

William P. Clayton, 90-year- old pioneer citizen of Scott county, died at the home of his daughter and son- in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Vaughn, Ruth and Malcolm streets, Thursday and with his death goes one of the few remaining links between the present and those days of half a century ago when dense forests stretched for miles on every side and automobiles and radios were unheard of.

She sells sea safety

Saucy Sunken Gardens "swabby" Karen Smallwood is a see- worthy reminder to the nation's 47 million boaters that June 30 marked the beginning of Safe Boating Week. The Coast Guard agrees that although the St. Petersburg, Fla., coed is a delectable deckhand, she is not mandatory shipboard equipment.

What's the law?

The case of the nervy son

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Jake owned and operated a plumbing business for over 30 leaky years when he decided to call it quits and hang up his trusty wrench. When he did so, his ambitious won Roger, who had worked with him the last couple of years, opened his own plumbing business and obtained his father's old number.

Retirement, as it developed, quickly proved less fun to Jake than a clogged sewer pipe. And, electing to go back into business, he asked the telephone company for the return of the telephone number he had used for 30 years.

"He can't have it back," protested Jake's son. "He gave it up. I've got it now."

"He's got nothing," was Jake's answer, "except a lot of nerve. Over a number of years, I built that number into a valuable business asset. Normally, a child doesn't inherit from his parents until they're dead. And, there's no tombstone over me yet."

The dispute ended up in court!

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you take the number away from Jake's nervy son and give it back to Jake?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that considering the fact that Jake had spent 30 years in establishing the telephone number as a valuable business asset in connection with his business, as against his son, it was more equitable to give it back to him dispite his short retirement. All's fair in love and business, concluded the judge in effect, but not as between a father and son under the facts of the case.
